

The Indor Facsimile Texts

Under the Supervision and Editorship of JOHN S. FARMER

Claudius Tiberius Hero

1607

127356

Issued for Subscribers by the Editor of

THE TUDOR FACSIMILE TEXTS MCMXIII

Claudius Tiberius Aero

1607

This facsimile of "Nero" is from the Dyce copy at South Kensington.

The play was licensed at Stationers' Hall on April 10th. 1607. The Title in some copies reads "The Statelie Tragedie . . ." &c. instead of as herein. No satisfactory attribution of authorship is forthcoming.

The reproduction from the original is pronounced to be "first-rate, virtually faultless."

JOHN S. FARMER.

THE (11) Tragedie of Clau-

dius Tiberius Nero, Romes greatest Tyrant.

Truly represented out of the purest Records of those times.

Et Studio, et Labore.

Anonymous

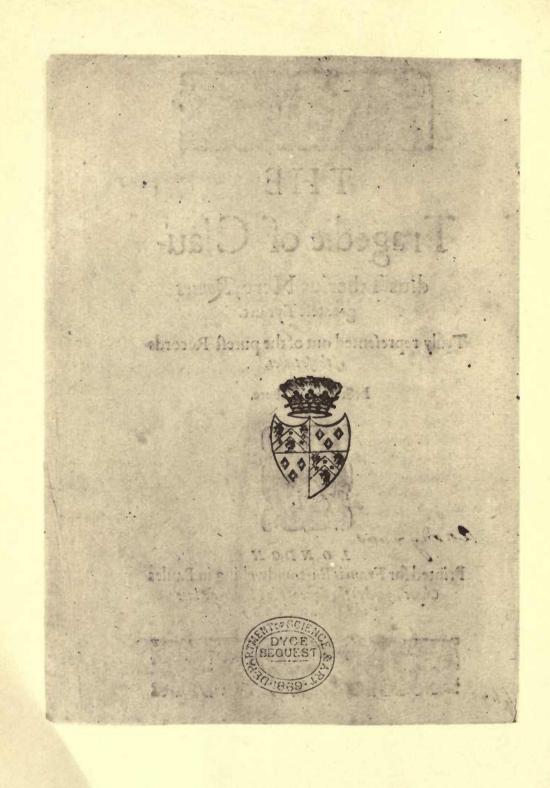

LONDON

Printed for Francis Burton, dwelling in Paules

Church-yard at the signe of the Flower-de-lute

and Crowne. 1607

To the Right Worship full Sir Arthur Mannering Knight, (Sonne and Heyre vnto Sir George Mannering of Eithfield in the Countie of Salop) Caruer vnto Prince Henry his Grace.

F Custome (Right worshipfull) had so greate a Preroi gatue as that nothing crossing it, were at all alowable, then might I iustly efeare reprehension for this my Dedication, having (to my knowledge) but a singuler President heerein; and the reason wherefore so many Plaies have formerly beene published without Inscriptions unto particular Patrons (contrary to Custome in divulging other Bookes) although perhaps I could nevely quelle yet because I would willingly offend none, I will now conceale. This young Scholler, as his proportion is comelye, so are his garments grave, his language faire, and by his speech it should seeme that his Father was an Academian: his tongue is tipt with Eloquence and his face is louely: he tels strange (but true) stories: he is meruailous wittie, and notwithstanding his Orphant-age) for eyther hee hathlost his Father, or his Father hathlost him) yet it should seeme that he hath read much, for he is well seene in Antiquities, but most especially inward with Cornelius Tacitus, our best approved Historian which cannot chuse but acquire him some fauour. I will say no more in his commendation let his own good parts praise him but in regard he is fatherles, your Wor Ship (Ithinke) may ace a deede of Charitie to be his Guardian, and happily his owne father may once be thankful vatoyou for such kindnes. In the me: nespace, as Imy selfe am partly by duetie already bound wnto your Worship. (amy love shalmake wp that which in duetie is wanting, and heereafter I will remaine your Worships devoted.

Ad Lectores.

In stead of Prologue to my Play, Observe this one thing I shall say.

I vse no Sceane suppos'd as many doe, But make the Truth my Sceane, and Actors too.

Fes

Of Romes great Tyrant I the storie tell, And what vnto that State in Neroes Raigne befel

The Tragicall life and death of Claudius Tiberius Nero.

Enter mourners to the funcrall: sie st Cocceins Nerna, with other Flaminy: next, the hearse of Angustus: then Tiberius, with Iulia on his right hand: then Drusus Tiberius, and Liuia: Then Agripina alone: next, her three sonnes, Drusus, Nero, and Caligula: next two Consuls, Asinius Gallus, and Titius Sabinus, with other Senators. They passe over the stage and goe in: then sound to the Coronation: and enter sirst two Consuls; then Tiberius Nero, Nerua with the crowne Emperiall: then Asinius, Sabinus, and Scianus, Senators: then Drusus Tiberius, Drusus, Nero, and Caligula: Tiberius Nero ascendeth.

T.b. 7 71 arious Confuls, and grave Senators, My noble kinsmen and deere Countrime, Deare friends to deare Augustus happinesse: Happie to haue such friends, and Countrimen: Could I but shadow out in maske of words, The forrowing language of my groaning foule, Or with a streame of teares alay the flame, Wherewith my heart doth like an Ætna burne, Yea Gods I call to witnesse of my thoughts, (words: My tongue should speake, and speake in weeping Mine eyes should well out words, & speak in teares, Wordes in my weeping, weeping in my words, To sympathize my deare affection, But fince,-He feigneth to fround. Seia. What ayles my Lord? how fares your noble Nern. See how the inundation of his grief (grace? Doth

Doth stop the fountaine of his vtterance. Ajin. Sotrue agricle exprest with fuch true loue Would make a man to be in lone with griefe. Dru. Tibe. My Lord and father, what deepe passion Your deep-engrauen forrowes hath surpriz'd? Tib. Ah Drusus, Drusus, the late memorie, Of great Augustus honorable deedes, Compared with this new prination, Doth rive my heart twixt contrarities. Now would my tongue remember his faire deedes. But then my heart swels with remembrance. Sweet Drulus, thou whose young experience, Hath not such deepe impression of these woes, Our honorable buryall rights vnfould, As moste besits these solomne Exequies. Dru. Tib. My Lord my duetie bindes me to obey, Against my reason, and my budding yeares, Yet for to checke my yeares, my reason saics, My duette must be reason to my yeares. Therefore great States of this fad Parliament, Fathers of Rome partakers of our woes, Vouchsate to wash your silver haires more white, With flowing teares of true compassion. Augustus Casar, high Octavius, The true successor of great Iulius, Who whilome glittering in his Sunne-bright raies Surpast the glorie of yong Phaeton: Now in the darke eclipfing of his daies, Lies lower then Apolloes breathlesse Sonne. Often hath Kome seene mans fragillitie, But nere before the Gods mortallitie. Ile pleade his Iustice, loe his mercie shines: Ile call himmercifull, yet iust withall: In mercy just in suffice mercifull: He pleade his honour, then his meekenes calls, lle praise hismeckenes, yet in honours robes: In

In honour mecke, in meekenes honourable, Ile plead his wisdome, but his wit me checks, Ile praise his wit, yet linckt in wisdomes chaine, In wittie wisdome, and in wisdome wit. He plead his beautie, but his strength bids stay. Ile praise his strength but in a beautious mansion, Beauteous in valour, and in beautie strong: So if ye reake not mans fragilitie, Yet weepe to see the Gods mortalitie. Con. 1. No more sweet Drusus into pleasing tearms. A storie to displeasing thou relatist. Con. 2. Good Dru/us, adde not water to the sca, Tomakeour sea of sorrowes overflow. Nerna. In vaine, in vaine, these puling signes of gricfe. Esseminate waywardnes, inconstant mindes, Vassailes to fortune, flanes to natures course; Augustus dead and so mustall mendie, So worke the fifters of necessitie. No person humane can eternall be, But in succession hath eternitie. Since then the ternall providence of heaven, Hath ratified Augustus Deitie, We must provide for his poore Widdow left, Left to our patronage (the Common-wealth) And you my Lord Tiberius the true heire Ofgreat Augustus by adoption, With loyall homage and true fealtie, We doe create our gratious Emperour. Tiber. And must my silence breake or heart In the accepting of a double yoake? (disolue Not so Cocceins tis impossible. Poore soule for me or for my modeltie. To sway th' imperiall Scepter of the world, That of this world am not my Emperour,

Prefents

One onely Thanix in Arabia;

I be I ragicallife and death

Presents a sacrifice to heavens eye, One onely Atlas by his providence The glittering starrs of heaven can support. One onely one Augustus, onely he Our Romane Phanex fit for Emperie, Who Is no, no, i know not what you meane, An Emperour must wake, I drowsie am: An Emperour must be valiant, Lamold: He must be just. Imay be over-rul'd: Sole Monarch must be be, my mother lives: And must, and shall be bonoured while she lives. An Emperour must be able to endure, In warre the winters frosts, and summers heate. I feele a palsie rooted in my bones, He must have honie dropping eloquence: I for my partnere playd the Orator. By this my, Tribunes power well I know, How many doubtfull cares he must endure That taketh care to be an Emperour. An Empire (Gods forfend) a goodly bait, To fish for witheste high aspiring fooles. Humilitie perswades me to auoyde A droppe of honie in a flood of Gall. Lords trouble not my resolution, I dare not, can not, will not take the crowne.

Sein. By Ione most gallantly dissembled: Aside.
Alas my Lord let tribute of our teares,
Plead for the orphant of our countryes state.
We know———

Ti. What do ye know? I know wel what ye know Youle say the state is dolefull: so am I.
The state is now an orphant, so am I,
The state hath lost his head, and so have I
My deare Angustus.

Sab. Why weepes Tiberius and will not cease?
And will not cease the weeping of the state?

Tib. Yes

Tiber. Yes, yes, Sabinus, I will help my part, There is Germanicus the hope of Roome, Nero and Drusus, and Caligula. These gallant blossomes of the goodly stemme. Cocceius, Titus, and Afinius, The spotlesse records of antiquitie, These are fit actors for our empires stage, I formy part will act some little part. Fit for my barren witte and leaden tongue, And you my Lords share in equaltie, The glorious Sceanes of Roomes faire Emperie. Asi. Why then my Lord Tiberius, choose you part The fruitfull Sicily or gold of Spaine, The Arabian spices, or the Indian pearles. The English wels, or Vines of Italie: The Palmes of Iury, or the Sithian Bathes. Either Ægiptian Isis, or Roomes Ioue, Memphis or Rome, Athens or Troynouant. Large Citties, fertile soile, and gratious Gods. If these, or any other may content, Within the Circuit of our Empire, My Lord, choose out your part, and leave the rest To be affign'd at our discretion. Scianus afide. O for a shift, now Lyon rouse thy selfe, Or else for ever loose thy Lyons head. Tib. May I Asinius choose? then this I choose, Totake no charge, for all I know is care, Sicilians mutinus and Spaniards proud, Arabians simple fooles, and Indeans droyles, Britons too rude, Italians too too wife, Disloyall Serians, superstitious lewes, Isis too far, and Ioue is plac'd to neare, Memphis, and Rome, Athens and Troynouant, All godly Citties, but all dangerous, By loue my hate hee deadly shall obtaine, That bids me but to take a part againe. Afin. Not

Affi. Not soe my Lord, you did misconster me, I did not meane to make devision In the vnited Vnion of the Realme: I did not meane to separate the Sunne, To runne by peece-meale in the Zodiacke: Nor dreame of multiplicitie of foules, Which one continued essence animates, The heavens cannot mooue without a Sunne: Nor can the heavens have more Sunnes then one. Tiber. Assinius I perceiue I did you wrong. So to inverpret your oration, Iam forry, (troth Iam) and if I live Herecompence your mightie injuries. Nern. Will not Tiberun then accept the Crowne? Tiber. Why should Tiberius libertie be ceased? Ners. No. Princes have the rule of libertie. Tiber. If libertie in greatnesse did relie. Neru. My Lord, my Lord, it is no time to iest, Nor dallie it out in quoin'd Antithesis, Emperour or no Emperour, will you the Crowne or Nero, speake plaine, it is high time to knowe. (no? Tib. Take heed my Lords, be warie in your choise, Least after stormes controle your rash attempt, You are to choose, but once consider well After, all Subjectes to your Emperour. If you constraine me to this doubtfull taske, And I(as God forbid) should change my minde, Turning my pittie to a Lyons rage, My fnow white conscience to a Scarlet dye, Would not the Nations of the leffer world That are not subject to our Emperie, Deride your lunaticke election, And if ye should but thinke amisse of me, Would they not laugh at your inconstancie? Take heede, take heede, in vaine ye will repent, Being fore-warn'd, and yet would not preuent. Sabin. My Sabin. My Lord, how long shall we wright in the Or plough the ayre with vaine delusions? (fands, Our tongues are tyred, and our throates are hoarse, And all in vaine we hend our suplyant knees, Vassaile our idle thoughts of reuerence, Subdue our mounting fancies to your loue, And will not all this moone Tiberius? (quest. Ne. Ger. Good Grandsire graunt the Senatours remove. Ger. Grandsire, they speake in earnest, take the Crowne.

Caliga Ger. Grandstreaccept this golde, looke how

My thinkes it would become you passing fine. Tiber. Deare Children, (old Tibersus eldest care) My heart doth daunce to heare the melody. That heavenly Confort turned to mine cares. Thanks my kinde kinf-men, noble Romains thaks Euen from my heart, although my cares increase, Constrain'd, yet gratefull for your kinde constraint, Bound to receive that which my foule abhors, Enforc'd to honour which my yeares deny, Inchain'd to rule, bane to my modellie. Yet were my cares in number infinite, (For who can number all his cares hath none) Should they showre downe in droppes of streaming Muster in troups of languishing dispaire, Swarinelike to Bees, sting like to Scorpions; Or like a flocke of Vultures gnaw my heart. Yet these and more, and twice ten thousand more, Old Nero will for Countries cause indure, For you my Fathers, and for you my Sonnes.

Sound Trumpets, Nerna crowneth him.
Ner. Most mightie Casar, great Tuberius,
Euer Augustus Tribune of the State,
Perpetuall Dictator, Lord of Rome,

Sole

Sole Confull for our conquered Provinces, Prince of the Senate in our policies, Wee heere inuest your sacred Majestie, In all the Ornaments imperiall, Roomes and the worlds most glorious Emperour. Omnes. Long live Tiberius Roomes great Emperor. Tiber. Like as an hartles fawne, enuironed Within the circuit of the hunters crie, So stand I Romaines wondring at your showtes. These new alarum's quel my flumbring thoughts, Chast to the Bay, I breathelesse panting muse, To view the viquoth glorie of the hunt. Neuer could Sparea glorie of such pray, Asfor to have an Emperour at bay. But noble Romaines, there's another Dearc. A gallant Roebucke, braue Germanicus: Roomes shining Beacon in rude Germany. Our deare adopted Sonne, our blessed care, To him my Lords (as zeale of my affection) And signe of duetie to the common state, We doe prorogue eight yeares proconfulthip, On you Asimus we doe impose, To be our Legate to Germanicus. Tel! him we loue him, (and be fure you doe) Tell him we honour him (doe not forget) We loue and honour deare Germanicus, And would be joyfull to beholde our Sonne. Honoured in triumph a the Capitall. But that we knowe the honour of his minde, Disdaines to crop the blossomes of his fame, Till it be flowred in his Summers pride, And all the barbarous Germaines be subdu'd. This doe Asin m and returne with love, In our new glorie, we thy honour proue. Asin. My Lord, what ere Asinius honour proueth His expedition shall declare he loueth.

Tib. Now

Tiber. Now Fathers, we will to the Sacrifice,
Saluting all the Gods in vifitation:
Let Lettisternia three daies be proclaimed,
The Sibbels counsels and Flaminies,
Ianns shut vp, and Vestaes fire blaze,
Into the middle region of the ayre,
Wee all my Lords will to the Cappitall,
In filuer seale, our records to enrole. Exeunt omnes.

Enter Plebeians, soure speakers.

I Did you not fee our new Emperour how brauely

he came from his Corronation.

2 Yes, twa's a gallat fight fure, but did you mark his countenance? my thought tis mightily altred within this five or fix quarters of a yere fince I saw him last:

3 I, and I faw him goe to the Senate, and as you fay, my thinks hee is much altered, and lookes more terrible a great deale.

2 I that same lookes I promise is an il signe, pray Godall be well.

4 Well, weemust hope the best, and thinke tis a great change from a subject to become a sufficient, for simple as I stand heere, if I should chaunce to bee chosen Emperour, I should assault my selfe highly I cantell you, or any of vs all.

3 Augustus, was a goodly man, and I hope hee has left such a gracious sample, that Tiberius wil not forget himselfe.

1 Neuertalke of Angustus more, we shal neuer see his like in Rome, vnlesse Germanicus might bee our Emperour, om.O worthy Germanicus! hee's a flower indeed.

My maisters, let talk no more of these State-matters, for I am afraid we have said too much already, if the Emperor should know of it.

2 You haue said wisely neighbour, for Emperors see & heare all that they desire. I have heard my father tel my mother so, they have millions a Spirits that tels them all.

3 I care

3 I care not, I saide nothing, but praide God hee might be no worse the Augustus, that was no harme:
4 Well, let vs part vpon this that hath been said, and lets keepe one anothers counsels, and take heed heereafter.

Exeum:

Enter Germaicus with Centurion Soldiers.

Ger. Well followed Tribunes, gallant Gentlemé, Thus are these hearts chac'd to their lurking dens, That brayed like Asses in their Lyons skinne. Worthy Centurion thou whose might did breake The triple ranges of our dangerous foes, Whose well wayed buckler tooke so many darts, As seem'd to cloud the sunne with multitudes Accept the honour of a Gentleman, Crown'd with the triumph of victorious spoyles, This Crowne thus pleated of the verdant graffe, Thy high vplifted head shall more adorne. Then all the honour of proud Germany. Censue Noble Germanicus a Romaine heart, Hath by inheritance a mounting spirit, Did not great Coriolanns fo aduqunce, The mellow fruite of his old withered stocke? Did not three hundeth Faby all at once, In one day breath, war, vanquish, fight and dye, All to maintaine the honour of their name? So did Marius in Numidia, And happie Scylla vnder Scipie. With what alacritic did Seenola, Encounter Perfenes torture, death and fire, All to maintaine the honour of their name, And should not I hazard this blaze of life, This rising bubble, this imprisoned soule, This changing matter, this inconstant act, For Countrie, friends, and honour of my name?

Page. My Lord, heere is a Legate sent from Rome, Which craues accesse vnto your Majestie.

Ger. Let him draw neare: Cosen Assists!

My tongue should play the Rethoritian, And in grave precepts strive to moralize. Or make a long discourse of patience, Adding a crooked fign'd Parenthelis, Ofpuling forrow twixt each sipred line. But for Asimins, knowes your settled minde So nurst in flowing streames of constancie, Agnins doth reporte Augustus death, I will not common place of mortall men, Nor of his vertue, nor his Nobleneffe, Nor Solons grave advise shall be my Theame: I know I speake vnto Germanicus, Befides, liberius is our Emperour. He faith he loues you, and to shew his love, Hath your proconfulthip eight yeres proroguld. Enter

Enter Centurian which was crowned.

Cent. Germanicus and grave Asinius,

Awake from counsell, all are in vprore,
Our Germane Legions are all mutinous.
And crie Germanicus our Emperour,
Germanicus our noble Emperour.

They make a Throne of tusts, and then they crie,
Germanicus shall be our Emperour.

Germanicus shall be our Emperour.

I am distracted, harke, the mutinies.

They crie within, and execunt omnes.

Enter Tiberius, Iulia, and Scianus.

Tib. Imputeit not vnto vngratefulnesse. (Imperious Augusta of great Rome, And which doth touchme nearer dearest mother, That Nero hath deferd indebted thankes. Equalent vnto your high, deserts. I can not (mother) fet your praise to sale, Or Orator it with a glofing tongue, Graced with picked phrases, glorious speech, Choice Synonimies, pleasing Epithites, Paged ba apish action, toying gesture, Mother I hate this tip-tongued flatterie, Better is me, be as you see me now, Thankfull in outward deeds, than outward shew. But forward mother with your former tale. Iulia. No sooner the vncontrolled fates. Exilde his life, and with his life our care, But that Seianns from whose faithfull tongue (As from Apollos tru-sent Oracles, We chiefe deriue the drift of our affaires) Poasted like to the Palphraies of the Sunne,

To Roades where thou in exile didft remaine,
There to enforme thee of Augustaes death,
The Empires vacancie, and thy repeale.
Tib. My tongue denies to blazon in harsh words
Deare friends the thaukfulnesse my heart affords.
Iulia. Meane while had Inot with great policie.

Buried in silence great Angustus death,

And in the closet of my care-sworne brest,
Embosomed the notice of the same,
Shewne vnto thee, smoothered to vulgar same,
Bar'd from the base Plebeians itching eares,
A Castrell had posses thy Eagles nest.
And thou the Eagle hadst beene disposses.

Seia. But now that Castrel in his course is stopt, Clipt are his pinions of ambitious slight.

Nor shall he hope to sit where Nero soares.

Tib. Were het he issue of eternal lone,
Or farre more fortunate in his successe,
Then was Aleider, or faire Theris sonne,
More happie in the ofspring of his loyne
Then Priam in his childrens multitude,
Yet would I bridle his aspiring thoughts,

And curbe the reynes of his ambition.

Seia. Wel can he braue it in his barbarous armes,
Against th' oppugning force of Germanie,
And stranger nations of the farthest North,
Whose hearts like to their Climate hard congeald,
Arefrozen cold to Romes selicitie.
A crested Burganetto more sits him,

Then to ingirt his Temples with a Crowne.

Tib. Therefore in policie by thine aduife,
Vnder pretext of honourable minde,
We deligated to Germanicus,
Asinius Gallus into Germanie,
With twice foure yeares prorogued Consulship.

Lulia. Which of necessitie he must accept,

2 Sith

Sith hope of higher honoar is forestald. T. ber. Tistrue, for what he aim'dat, I enioy: This was th' attractive Magnes of his hopes. Scia. To which how hardly did you feemcallur'd With such denyall you resused it: Making a Commentarie on the Crowne. With of ! the duetie of an Emperour, How warie, watchfull, wife he ought to be. How drowsie, and improvident you were, With heaping vp a storie of what cares They vndergoe, that vndertake to rule. So grac'd with fundrie fquemith fubtilties. As Mercurie himselfe (the God of witte) Might have admir'd, but not have matched it. Tiber. Yetdidthat Argus eyed Affining, Both marke and bluntly mateme in my drift, With, choose your part my Lord in Britany, Or heyday, where you will, so not in Rome, but by my Genius ile remember-Julia. I, had not wife Afinius vttered it. Tiber. Hadme no had-nots, nor Asining Can so ore cannopie his close conceite, But I will know the Panther by his skinne. Noram Lignorant of his great loue He beares vnto the proud Germanicus, How ever clowed in hippocretie. Seian. I, that Germanicus holds al their hearts, (hope Inh. Nomervaile, for they call him Roomes chiefe Sein. And some did say he should be Emperour. In spite of Iulia and hir exild Sonne, Tiber. But neither Inha nor her exilde Sonne, Would have endured fuch competitors. Nero will brooke no riuall in his rule, Vnlesse it be th' emperious lulia, Towhome the law of nature bindes Tiberius So firme obleiged in obedience,

As all the attributes of Majestie: Rome or the world, or Nero can affoord. I deeme too meane a tribute for her love. Whose love first lent the essence of my life, Whose life doth onely make me loue to liuc. Inlia. Enoughmy fonne. Sufficient presidents of dutious minde, We oft have proved and approved oft, Andfor our part neuer did Heenba Beare so great loue to all the sonnes sliebare, As Inlin doth to one Tiberius. Tib. Mother, I do confesse and know it true, But in the infancie of our estate, More private consultation better fits, We and Scienus, will into our studie. Inlia. Andweinto our walking Galleric. Exennt.

Enter Germanicus solus.

ingur 1 sugar 51 Germ. I haue dispatcht Asinius to Rome, With thankes to Nero and the Senators. O Roome! Angustus dead, Tiberius Emperour, The Romaine Senate glozing flatterers, The Legions discontent and mutinous: The Pretors tyrants in their Provinces: The Nauie spoil'd, varig'd dismembred: The Cittie made a brothell house of sinne! Italians valour turn'd to luxurie. The field of Mars. turn deto a Tennis-court, Mineruaes Olive to the Mirtle tree, Appeloes Laurell, vnto Bacchus Vine, High Ione contemd, and Veftaes Tapers scorndi The Oracles dispis'd, the Sibbili bookes Esteem'das superstitious delusions: The Orient vp in armes and Pelofled,

The Gallogretians proud for to rebell,
Affricke in vprore, Asia in braules.
And these rude Germaine kernes not yet subdued;
Besides a new deuis'd Religion,
Of the inconstant Iewes cal'd Christians:
Our facred Oracles some are stroke dumbe,
And some fortolde of Romes destructione.
Vocall Boetia in deepe miseries,
And Delphian glorie in obscurenesse lies,
A Geminica Phabus, a three doubled moone,
A whirling Commet, slashing in the ayre,
A Wolfe ascended to the Cappitoll:
The Temple blasted of sidelitie:
A common Harlet to bring foorth a Beare,
O Gods! my heart doth quake, my soule doth feare.

Enter a Page.

Page. My Lord, the scoutes discouered the wood. Wherein the Germaines doe in ambush lie. Ger. Sirra, goe tell them I will scarre the Crowes. Page. My Lord. Exit. Ger. Boy, trouble not my Meditations, What should I spend my time to scarre these crowes, When there's a cole-blacke Rauen pearcht so high? Germanicus, soare thou an higher pitch, Towrelike a Larke, and like an Eaglemount, Till thou halt feaz'd vpon thy pray: for why? The Legions love thee, hate liberius: Honourthy vertues, scorne his cowardise, Extoll thy meekenesse, and reuile his pride: Pray for thy happinesse and cursse his daies My Father Cains: his was Claudius, I am of Cafar, he of Iulia: Theire by nature he but by adoption: Rome saw thee honoured, Rhodes him bannished, He

He tam'd the Foxes of Illiria, But I the Lyons of proud Germanie. And this were cause enough, were there no other: I by Augustus made, he by his mother. But thou art heire imperall to the state: But he that lookes for death may hope to late. Yet hope Germanicus, good hopes a treasure, But he that hopes for meate, may starue at pleasure, I, but Tiberius Nero's verie olde. But young enough to live to fee thee fold: I, but he loues thee for Angustus fake, Augustus gone, the match to new to make, But fince his death, thy power he hath augmented, I, that at Rome my power might be preuented: He sent thee word he loues thee, so I thinke: Who would not loue the wine he meanes to drinke? He honours thee (he faid) and fo I deeme, Who would not of the fattest Goate esteeme? Impatient furie flye Germanicus, How is thy reason dimn'd with clowdie passion? Proud swelling dropsic, ever gnawing worme, Infatiate vulture, vile ambition, Deluding Sirene, where's Germanicus? The Legions loue thee not for to aspire, Thy vertue shines not in oppression; No honour in ambitious aray: No meekenesina traytors happines, Thy Father got thee not for to rebell, Nor Cafar did abet thy treacheries, By nature heire, then be thou naturall, Rome faw thy honour, change not liveric; But make thy haruest vp in Germanie.

Enter a Page.

Page. My Lord the Tribunes sent me to your grace
To know your royall pleasure in the case.

Germ. What,

Ger: What, haue they chas'd the foe, and I delay? Runne Causs, flie for hast, away, away.

Enter Caligula at one end of the stage, and Seianns at the other end below. Iulia at one end aloft, and Tiberius Nero at the other.

Cal. Iam a foole, I am Caligula, Suppos'dandidiot, and am so indeed. For hethat will live safe must seeme a foole Iulia- Am not I Empresse, and shall I be control'd. Am I Augusta, and shall I not rule? Haue I made him to raigne, and shall I stoope? Is he my sonne, and am not I his mother? Tiberius thou shalt know a womans hate. Exceedeth bounds, and neuer can have date. Tib. Howam I Emperour and my mother rule? Is the the Sunne, shall I the shadow be? I but the smoake and shall she be the fire? I but a bare imagination, And she the image that is honoured? I but the ercho, shall she be the found? A plague vpon her, I will her contound. Seia. Thus will I do: nay thus, nay villaine thus Poison Teberius: Ibut Germanicus, The Emperour and his mother feeme to iarre. Fight Dog, fight Cat, for both your sports ile marre But Nero loues me: fo did my mother to. And yet I brake her neckem honestie. Mother forgiue me, ile doe so no more, Yet if a thousand mothers necks would serue To get me to be Emperour of Rome. By heavens I would not leave one necke alive, And to be fure that they should all be broke. Ide hire some honest joynter them to fet, And breake them over twentie thou fand times, And

And for to recompence his worthy paine, Idemake him fet his owne nine times againe. Calign. I laugh to see how I can counterfeite. And I should blush, if that Germanicus, My father, my dissembling should beholde He knowes I ama Soldier, not a foole: My mother was deliuered in the Campe. And in my swadling cloathes, I chac'd the Foe, My Cradle was a Corflet, and for milke I battened was with blood; and fed so fast That in ten yeares I was a Collonell. My mother knew this, but the deemes me chang'd Poore woman in the loathsome Romish stewes, O Mother, Iam chang'd: but wherefore soe? Caligula of Caligula must not knowe. Inl. Shall I call him a Bastard? true it is, But Inlia, then thou doo'st thy felfe the wrong. Say that he was Augustus murtherer, Yet therein Luha thou wert counseller. How then? a vengeance on his curfed head. So he were murther'd would that I were dead. Vile Monster that Iam, to perrish loath, Yet heaven's raine brimitone and confume vs both. I am impatient, yet I must dissemble. Tiber. She is my Mother, I must honour her: She is my Ladie, I must shew her duetie: Sheismost wise, worthie of reuerence: I but the hag is moste ambitious, Shee must have Priestes for sooth, and Flaminies, To facrifice vnto her majestie, She must checke Nero, I and schoole him too; As he were prentife to hir tutorship, She must incorporat free Denizens: Or else sheele scold and raile, & snarle and bite, And take vp Nero for his lustinesse. Well, let her scolde, and rayle, and inarle and byte,

Nero will mannage well the haggard kite. I will by Ione, I will, vet I must feeme As though my mother I did most esteeme. Exit Tib. Ser. He that wil clime, and ame at honours white, Mult be a wheeling turning pollititian: A changing Proteus and a feeming all, Yeta discoloured Camelion Fram'd of an avrie composition: As fickle and vnconstant as the avre: Fit for the Sunne to make a Raine-bow in. By each new fangled reflection, Rul d by the influence of each wandring starres Waxe apt to take each new impression. With witemen fober, with licencious, light: With proud men thately, humble with the meeke: With old men thirftie and with young men vaine: Withangrie, furious, and with mild men calme: Humerous with one, and Cato with another: Effeminate with some, with other chaste, Drink with the Germain, with the Spaniard braues Brag with the French, with the Ægiptian lie, Flatter in Creet, and fawne in Græcia. This is the way, Seianus vie thy skill, Or this, or no way must thou get thy will. If thou gooft nieane the Empire to obtaine, Sweare, flatter, lye, dissemble, cog & faine Fxin. Se. Calio. Caligula, why doth thy flumbring foule, Thus dreame within thy common sences mansion? Awake for shame flye to Germanicus, Ringin thy Fathers eases a peale of forrow, Vncase this follye, and vnmaske this sace, That hath enueloped Caligula. But leemy mother, Agripina comes With valiant Drusus, and Nero my wise brother, Caligula's now a Foole, in faith no other. Maneto Enter

Enter Agripina with her two Sonnes, Drusus and Nero.

Agr. Why then my Sons, Tiber. weares the crown : Dra. Imother, and hee sweares heele keepe it too. Ner. Ger. And reason brother hath he so to doe. Dru. What reason brother hath he but his will? Nero. Will may be reason, if heele keepe it still. Druf. And shall he raigne? a base Plebeian. Ner. He was adopted a Patritian. Druf. So may I choosemy horseto be my Page. Nero. Good brother calme your furious swelling We gaue our voices in his election, nay Brother stormenot, here me what I say, Did not we sweare loyall fidelitie, within the Capitoll vnto his grace? Did we not both at Vestaes sacred shrine, Pray for the safetie of his Majestie? And wilt thou Drusus now recall thy oath, Recall thy vowes, recall thy prayers insence? Remember Drulus, what so ere he be, Now he is crown'd al'spast recouerie. (you know Drn. Crown'd, I, and may be discrown'd for ought How fay you mother, may it not be so ? Cal. This ti's to be resolu'd my gallat Brother. afar How hardly can I my affections smother? Agrip. Young Impes of honour, in you both I finde A noble way to vertuous resolution: In theemy Nero, wisdomes treasurie: In thee my Drusus, magnanimitie, In both, your fathers honorable minde. Speake faire my Sons (awhile) vnto Tiberius, Vntill the tryumph of Germanicus: Then be resolu'd-The cause is honorable, feare no ill. But Ohmy Sonnes! yonder's Califula Capring: he takes no heede of higher thinges,

Ile call him hether, and fee what he faics: Califula, come hether gentle Sonne, How dooft thou like the great Tiberius?

Cil. Faith hee's a braue man Mother, and his parrell is fit, and he has a fine Crowne of golde, and all this makes him but a braue ma, for what would you have in a braue man but he may have it?

Agr p. Well, well my Sonne, youle neuer leaue your toies.

Calig. Why Mother, he can turne about ground, turne on the toe, turne euerie way, what should I say more?

By heaven a brave man.

Nore. And what can you doe Brother, let vs see?

Cal. Faith Brother I am not in the humour, and braue men can doe nothing without it bee in an humour.

Druf. Comelet vs leaue this humorous Gentlema.
Agrip. Farwell Caligula.

Excunt. Agr. Druf. & Nero

Califula, set you not both to Schoole.

Caligu. I, I warrant you, for ile sup at Courtte night.

Fatewell Mother, bretheren both farewel,
Whome I admire in such deuotion:
But dare not trust. Drusus I know thee well,
And loue thee dearely, for thy high resolues,
But dare not trust thee. Nere I applaud
Thy wisdome, but it wants a resolution.
Nere and Drusus, beware the braine-sicke soole

Inlin. Tiberius, and Scianus.

Iulin. Heard ye not with what general applause,
Asinius was welcomnied to Rome?
At his returne from barbarous Germany,
How many greedie eares did glut themselues,

With hearing newes of their Germanicus ? How many greedy tongues in labour were, To blazen foorth the trophees of his praise? Tiber. Not Priams Helter from the flying Greeks, Whome he had chased from the Terrhene thore, Return'd with greater expectation, Then laden with the spoiles of Germaine foes, The people long to see Germanicus. Seia. Not onely the Plebeians, but the Equites. Do reuerence him within their inward thoughts, as if the Vallaile were a demie God. Tiber. And rightly marry, for if Nero line, Nere shall deifie him to the full. Seia. But if you suffer him on honors wings, To foare vp higher in ambitious flight, Borne on the tempest of the peoples tongues: Tis tenne to one, heele neuer stoope to lure, To keepe him short, is onely to be sure. Iulia. Let vs commaund him, vpon paine of death, Not to approach within our cittie walles, But either to dismisse his Soldiers, Or on the plaines pitch his Pauillions. Tiber. No marry mother, not for all the world, Why? it were omminous: Romes walles engirt, With armed garrisons of greatest foes, Vnpolitiquely counsel'd in my minde, Administring too fit occasion, Forto suspect and feare a foule pretence. And further, that the bafe Pleberant, As wauering, and inconstant in their loues, as is thee changing Laconiades: Who hearing but a muttering of our driftes, Would like a world of rivers to the maine, Flow to Germanicus by multitudes, Whose swelling pride, by their repaire encrease, Will overflow the bankes of loyaltie.

Mother

Mother this was but shallow pollicie, But who'st that interrups our conference?

Enter Pisofrom Armenia.

Seia. It's Lucius Pifo, Pretor of Sirria. Tiber. Welcome to Rome, and olde Tiberius. What newes in Sirria, and Armenia? With all our Orientall Provinces: Pis. Peace hath refign'dher rome to bloody warre, Whilst Mars the furie-breathing God of armes, Knits vp his fore-head in a fearefull frowne And in the furrowes of his foulded browes, Displaies the sable Ensigne of sad death, V ponthe spacious Armenian plaines, And all the orient in rebellious pride, (Threatning destruction, to our westerne world) Doe seeme to challenge vs in daring armes. Tiber. Who is the Head in this rebellion? Pis. The cheife controler of these warlicke troups Is vncontrold Vonones on whose Crest: Victorie seemes to daunce among his plumes, His Burgonet and steele Habergeon, Of bloody colour like vnto his minde, Of visage sterne, broad brow'd, and hollow ey'd, Looking as though he did comprise the world, Within the complot of some stratagem. Tiber. Ha! what, so soone Armenia vp in armes, Hall thou forgot thy wonted servitude? Are Romanes vertues and their vigor done? Or dead with Silla that first conquered thee? Are all the stripes that strong Lucullus gaue, Vnto thy neighbour Pontus and thy selfe, Quite healed vp, without offensiue scarre? are mightie Pompeies Tropheis quite forgot? Well, be it fo: they blow rebellious flame, And

And they shall feelethe furie of the same, Meane while, returne thou 1/0 to thy lodging, Till fit occasion to employ thee hence. Sesa. How likes your Maieslie this woful newes? In. Like enough, he misliketh it enough. Night Iulia counfell him, he should revenge it, with more extreamitie of punishment, Then angrie love raign'd from the vault of heaven Vpon his Throne oppugning Briaris. Tibe. I, foft: nd faire, first stop our teares at home. Then let Armenia feele the force of Rome. Ser. Good counfaile, great Tiberius, knew we how. Tiber. How? what are all our pollicies extinct? Noe, be attentine and ile tell thee how. The head-spring stopt the smaller founts will faile. and thus our home bred feare Germanic; Grounding their hopes vpon their fathers haps Take from his life their lights continuance, His life therefore extinct, their light is done. Inl. This is the thing that we consulted off, But to no purpose yet. Tibe. Yes Mother yes, By this occasion of the Armenian wars, an opportunitie is offered vs, Both to revenge and rid vs of our foes. This Vhirer of fame Germanicus, (Who gapes as greedily for faire renowne, As doth a niggard for a showre of golde.) No sooner shall returne to Rome, Grac'd with the tryumphes of his victories, But by my pollicie, and faire pretext, We will conclude it in the Senate house, That for the fafetie of Romes tottering state, Germanicus must to Armenia, Where heethall fall by fierce Vonon.s fword, Or if he scape, weele so determine it, As

As Joue to Saturne, hall religne his Throane, and banisht from the Speare, where now he raignes, Humble himselfe, below the horned Moone, Before he shall returne to visite Rome.

Enter Drusus, Linia, and Spade.

(iestie

Druf. Tiber: The Gods preserve your royall Ma-Tibe. Good day vnto you Sonne and Liuia Iulia. Hane you attended long our comming forth? Linia: Not vericlong my gracious Grandmother, But hearing you were in close conference, It had beene rudenelle to have interrupted yee. Tiber. We were indeede in consultation, about affaires of speciall secrecie, But where fore-lookes our Sonne so sad this morne Drug. T ber. Hath not the clang of harsh Armenian The rathing found of Clarions & Drums, (troupes Thundred into your eares a deepe reuenge? The Orient doth shine in warlike steele, and bloody streamers waved in the ayre, By their reflexions die the plaines in red, as omminous vnto distructive wars. as are the blazing Commets in the East. Tibri: We have both heard, and eke consulted of The whole effect : of which our conference, VVe thall at fitter time relate to thee. Meane while lets make our preparation, against th' arrivall of Germanicus, VVho meanes to morrow for to Royalize, The triumphes of his Germaine victories. Exennt Tiberins, Inlia, and Drufus

Maner Seianus & Livia, & Spado. Seian. Madame, a word with your go d Ladiship. Liui. So please it your good Lordship, so yemay. Seia. But

Seian. But shall I speake my mind without cotrols Linia. I haue no pattent to controll you sir. Seian. But will yenot beangry if I doe? Lini. That's as your selfe shal give me cause therto Seia, But say my tung thould fault before I find it? Linia, Iflightly I would passe it, and not mind it. Seia. What if I thould offend with hearts assent? Linia. The offence shuld pardoned be if you repet Seia: Thinketh my Lady as she fayth to me? Linia. No other wayes my Lord. But well I fee By these your long circomlocutions, Your bufinesse is of small import with me. Seia. Of more import (sweet Lady) then my life. Lisia. A matter of more waight then I must know. Seia. Yet must you know it or I must not be Linia. Can Linia then impart a remedie? Seia. Lifthe please to salue my maladie. Linia. What salue should Linia to your fore apply? Seia. Pitties quintesence, and soft clemencie. Linia. Strange sore, strange salue. Seian. Yet not so strange as true. Linia. Ipittie it : God send you ease, adue. Sera. Yet heare me gentle Lady ere you part, To tel my paine doth somewhat ease my heart. And to be graced with attentiue heede, To Louers doth especiall comfort breede. Linia. Then is my Lorda Louer? Seian. You have read. Linia. How wonderfully metamorphosed? Sian, More wonders can she worke that wrought Able to change the chastest vtican. (my bane, Linia. What, is your Goddesse then a Sorceresse? Seian. The first, but then the latter nothing lesse. Linea. You faid the vsed charming for ceries: Seia. Onely the inchantments of her Cristall eies, Which had they glaunced on enamoured lone, While

While Io lin'd Ione, would have beg'd her love. and spite of inno, Hebe and Gammede, She onely should have grac'd Theatates bed, Lin. Pearelesse belike, and fit to be a Cowe, Farewell Stanses, I must leaue ye nowe. Sein. Deare Madam, one word more, and then far-Lini. Be briefe Scianus then. Seia. Beauties faire cell, The heavenly Panoinphea of our daies. Lin. Nav, then lam gone, if you begin to praise. Seia. By these bright thining Tapers thy faire eies The guiding Planets of Sesansu life, Which beautifie the heaven of thy face, With farre more glorious admiration, Then chast Distinna or Latonaes Sonne, But one word more (deare soule) and I have done. By this faire braunch, sprouted from fairer tree, Enamuled with Azure Riverets, Blew coloured vaines, which cuerie waies difper'it. In kinde embraces clip thy tender hand. Lini. Villaine, let goe, gripe not my hand so hard. Seia. How can I chose, fith you do gripe my heart? Lin. Let goe my hand, or I will have thy head. A gripe thy heart villaine as thou art! Ser. I, in your louely, but obdurate brest. Lin. Inmy brest!thoughit were there indeede, I would vario my breast, and teare it out. Seia. Yet for your selues sweet sake to self be kinde Soe faire a frame holdes not so soule a minde. But Madame, leaving off this angric moode, In fadnesse would you graunt, if you were woo'd. Lini. Blast not my name with lustfull infamie. For if thou do, by heaven I wil -She pulshu rapier Seia. Lady, these handes were neuer made to bradish steele. Li. Could I but get it, thou should'st quickly feele. Scia. Fye

Sei. Fye Lady, fye, what turn'd a Soldier? If you be so resolud, let this be war. He killeth her. Lin. Vnciuilie, by violence! Spade I am wrong'd. Sp. By Ioue, or aske for givenes for thy fault, Or I wil sheath my Rapier in thy heart. Sp. draweth. Sei. Put vp, put vp, Pigmy hold, I say put vp: Seianus gineth Spado his pursse.

What wilt thou kill thy Ladies parramour? Lin. Leaden resolued coward let me see't. I will phlebotomize his luftfull blood.

She taketh the Rapier. Seia. That have yed one alreadie by your spight, And now accept this facrifice. Helmoundeth.

Spa. O cruell plight! Lin. Yet will I breath another life into him, Or burie him within this Sepulcher: Spade, helpe, helpe, for Gods fake holde his head, See how the teares congealed in his eyes, Doemakeme see my shame that was vnkinde, Good gentle heart, I should have pardoned him. Sein. Faire Proferpine !

Iama Louer. Linia. See how his idle foule, Not quite disseuered from his Arteries, Makes him dreame vainely of Elizium:

Seinnus: Seia. Who cal's that name, He liftes himselfe up, & The verie index of al misery? Linia flyeth backe. Lini, I am a shamed for I wastoo nigh. Sein. Ah Lady, I did dreame that you did grant me Lin. What shall I say? words faile me to deny him, Scianus dreamethou still that I did graunt-Seia. But dreames without effectes bee but vaine hopes. Linia. No more was your's, yet dreame you stil in hope.

Seia. But E 2

Seia. But shall my hopes succeede?

Lin. I will not promise.

Seia. But performe indeed. Exit Linia & Spado.

Manet Seianus solus.

Seia. Wrong me not shallow Pollititians, By misinterpreting my actions: A farther reach is in Scianus head, Then to adulterate a Princes bed. Not lust, nor love, but hate and iniurie, Inspire me with profounder pollicie. Vnder this vale of lone inuelloped, Tisnotakisse: an Empire tis I seeke, An opportunitie to claime the crowne. And fit occasion to wreake revenge, Vpon her husband for his iniuries. Drufus, the boxe on the eare thou gave's me, Becomes the Prologue of thy Tragedie. Meane while, let this suffice: for my intent Is onely for to love this instrument, As did Vlisses, Troyes Paladium, Not for it selfe, but Troyes destruction. But whist Science prison vp thy tongue, Now to the tryumphes, I have staid too long.

Enter Germanicus in Tryumph with the Arch-flamines before him, Tiberius on his right hand, Asinius and Sabinus: next Iulia, Agripina, and Liuia, then Nero, Drusiu and Caligula, Germanici: then Scianus and other Senators, then the Captaines of Germanicons with his Soldiers and Prisoners: they crowne him with Crownes and Garlands according to the Custome, and all crie.

Omnes. Long liue victorious Germanieus, In glory Royallize. Ner. Archfl. Noble

Ner. Archfla. Noble Germanicus, whose winged Swift glyding through the frozen Germany, (fame, Hath brought vs newes of thy faire victories, Thou that doest equalize in honors Titles, The elder Scipio, noble Affrican, And younger Scipio Asiaticus, Paulus Emilius of proud Macedon, Flaminiaes conquest, and Metellus glorie: Old Fabius wis dome and Marcellus furie, Renowned Gracchus, gallant resolution, Braue man at armes vnfold thy Victories, Which heavens themselves do seeme to solemnize. Ger. First to the Gods the Authors of my good, Isacrifice the insence of my thankes. Next vnto youmy Lord imperiall, I wish eternitie of happinesse. All you that weare the snowie liverie; Oflong experience worthie Senators: And you the flowring blossomes of faire Rome, My verie essence, valiant Soldiers all Louing Quirites, loyall countriemen, Faire Ladies, mirrors of the amazed world, Embelished with royall chastitie; In all the circuite of my humble vowes, I offer vp to lones protection. Since first my Lords I entred Germanie, The fertile soile of base Rebellion, Our Eagles twice nine times haue been displaid, And twice nine times with Tropheis honored. The barbarous Marshes on the southerne side; Hailde downe three furious stormes of poysoned Not Cicas torture bloody Scithian: Nor Crassus scourge, disembling Partheans, Dideuer rage in such tempestious showres, But by the prowelle of our valiant Knights, Who all alighted from their furious steedes,

Wce

We flil'd the hiffing of these poylonous Snakes. Which all the neighbour countrie stinges to death. Omnes, Long line the valiant Germanicus. Ger. But on the northerne side of Germany, Whereas th' Vlipites kept the plaine, Impalled in a wildernesse of wood, VVal'd with a rockie mountaine in the East. Back't with the fea vppon the northerne Coast. Enchannel'd with a deepe intrenched meere. Betwixt our Legions on the Southerne side. These mew'd-vp Foxes in this Stratagem. Deridedall our Legions braueries. Fouretimes with all our power we gaue assault. To winne the passage of that daungerous meere. Foure times repulsed by the quaking ground, That trembling durst not beare our Soldiers. Atlength when Cinthia's borrowed waining light Repai d the essence of her brothers lampe, Behinde the low desending of the hill, I saw the Ocean farre rebattered. As when the elder African in Spaine, by ebbing Thetis scarred Carthage walles, So by the flying backward of the maine, The Foxes on the backe I saw engirt, That thankes to Neptune for his clemencie, They all adorne our royall victorie. Omnes. Long live the valiant Germanicus? Ger. Next to th' Vhipetes were incamp't, The Tubants honering on the Mountaines side, That if our Legions approach't the hill, They roule downerocks of stone to murther them. V pon the hanging of the steepie Clift, There was by nature plac'd a little groue, But surely guarded for the Druides,

To solemnize their humanesacrifice, As in the second cruell punick warre,

The

The tents of Siphax, and of Hasdruball, Were all enflam'd by noble Scipio, So by the burning of this little groue, The mountaine quite consumd where Tubants lay, And they became our triumphs goodly pray: But in the wood that borders on the mount, The cruell Tigers hid their damned heads: The fauage Agrinary kept their den, Who ranging now & the would fnatch their pray, Renting each joynt, disseuering each part, And neuer leave till they had found the hart. Not Massagetes were so cruell calld, Nor Babilon was ere so strongly walld: For fince Vsiperes last confusion, They made the sea a moate vnto the wood, That great Alcides would have wondered, To see this Iland so environed. Hard by the Southerne frontire of the wood, Danubiaes streames swelling in proud disdaine, Vnto the checker of the Ocean, Muttering repaid his tributarie due. There did I make my skilfull Pioners To cut a trench from great Danubius, That this new sea which walled in the wood, Wasnow the grave of their perdition. For when Danubiaes streames did meet the maine, The fauage Agrinary all were drown'd, But such as swam to vs we would not sleay, That they might grace the honour of our day. Omnes. Long line Victorious Germanicus, Ger. Twice did we meer the Buckstars in the field, And fortie thousand quite were vanquished Ofstiff-neckt Chatti, neuer yet contrould, An hundred thousand perisht in one field, Not Cannas nor the fields of Pharfalie: So died in blood as was Danubins.

And

And which my private loy doth more obtaine,
Ofall the Romanes were but ninetic flaine.
This is the Theater of Germanie,
And these the countries which I conquered,
Now worthie Emperour I made a vow,
To dedicate my sword to loves protection.
If t please your Maiestie for to ascend,
Vnto the Senate where Germanicus,
Will all the secrets more at large disclose a
Meane-while my followers I you dismisse,
Exeunt the souldiers.

And al my gracious friends with thanks I leaue, Vntil our Country rights we doe performe, Which done, Germanicus will foone returne. Omnes, Long live the valiant Germanicus:

Long live Victorious Germanicus.

Exeunt all inforder to the Senate at one doore. Iulia Agripina, Liuia, and Caligula, at the other. Mauet Nero, and Drusas Germanici.

Nero. Drusus if you had beene so valerous
As over boasting in thy bumbast tearmes,
We might have sealed our league of amitie,
Now with Tiberius colde congealed blood.
Drusus. And if thy bookish wisdome clarkly Art,
had armed beene with Romane resolution,
I tell thee Nero Cowardas thou art,
Tiberius should not thus have scape our hands,
By Ione my father was his coat of steale,
Plac'd betwixt my sword and him, or els—
Nero. Orels thou would shave sworne,
Volumes of six foote othes, but nere a blow.

Dru. Nomore, my father comes. Nero. Coward, I doe retort it in thy teeth. Dru. Why Nero, brother, are ye mad?

Enter

Enter Tiberius and Germanicus, Nerua, Sabinus, Asinius, Seianus, Piso, with other Senatours from the Senate.

Tib. I hope this sodaine businesse of the East,
Doth not agrate our sonne Germanicus.
Ger. My Lord the honour of my Countries cause, doth counterpoize my sad affections.
Tib. Farewell my honourable gallant sonne,
The hope of Rome, my deare Germanicus,
Piso farewell, remember well thy duetie,
Once more adue my deare Germanicus,
Seia. My Lord Germanicus the heauens conduct,
Your high resolues to happie victorie.

Exennt Tiberius, Scianus, and Piso. Ger. Thanks good Seianns, gentle friend farewel, Nerna. My Lord Germanicus I much lament, The strong rebellion of the Orient, My heart presageth what I dare not say, Farewell Germanicus for now I dare not stay. And yet I will: ah deare Germanicus! How dothold Nerna wish thy companie? And but my honour doth controule my will, I would Germanicus—farewel, farewel. Ger. Nay good Cocceius, stay a little while, Toheare, the last perchance I ere shall tell thee, So variable is the chaunce of warre. Vnto you three the patrones of my life, Nerua, Sabinus, and Asinius, Vnto your patronage I recommend, My Orphant children, and my widow wife, Faire Agripina. No more my Lord, let heavens tell the rest, Remember your true friend Germanicus.

They embrace, and so part.
Exis Cocceins, and enter Piso.
Piso. Or

Pif. My Lord'twere time your busines were dispatche.

The iorney craves great expedition, and date of your abode is wellingh out.

Gov. Nor ought you to extenuate the fame, What though the Senate hath decreed it fo, Germanicus should give adiew to Rome, Before to morrowes Sunne falute the world, Yet have I some time to remaine therein, Which being small, that small space let me spend, To fatissie mine eyes with gazing on't, Who for these many winters have desir'd, (Although in vaine) to resalute this place, and now no sooner resalute the same, But am constrained to bid it adiew, It may be never to returne againe.

Pif. Ismay be ? nay thats fure Speaking afide.

The Senate hath decree'd, and it must be, There's no resisting of necessitie,

Ger. Yet gentle Piso, suffer me to grieue,
If at nought else, yet at necessitie,
Too strickt for ouertoylde Germanicus,
Whose wearie limmes, require a longer rest
Then is one daies short intermission.
Yet were it Piso but an houres space,
Were all my bodie brus d with bearing armes,
Yet would Germanicus beare it as he may,
and rather sinke vnder his armours weight,
Then leane to weare it in defence of Rome,
To whome though Rome for harbour be deny'd,
Yet hath he roome in all the world beside:
Onely this respite, and I craue no more,
To give my wise and Sonnes their last farwell,
Pi. You may, & I wil cal the presently.

Ger. Do Piso & behonoured for this faucur.

Büt

But see thy sonnes Germanicus, thy sonnes, Declaring by their angrie clowded frownes, Some civill discord, or some discontents, For shamemy boyes, if so a Fathers power, May have predominance in sonnes dissent, Cleare vp those clowdie vapors of your browes, That threaten stormes of dreadfull discontent. Leaue off your ouer-daring menacies, and tell the cause of your dissention, Tell me, for I ought, must, and will know. Ner. Onely this (father) caus'd our controuerfie. Going to the Capitoll to the Tryumph, VVefawa Kite vsurpe the Eaglesplace, Wherat enrag'd, we cast our Falcons off, and for mine, was not of fuch speedy flight as was my Brothers, he began to chafe. Druf. Patience herselfe I thinke would be enrag'd. To see a man so faintly Faulconer it. For Father, had my Brother done his best. VVe might have taken downe the Haggard Kite. Ger. VVhat, for so small a matter fall at oddes? Fie, neuer violate true Brothers loue By furious rages and dissentious Iarres: It not befits your title, nor these times, Sad time wherein (perhaps) my last farwell. Is to be taken of my dearest Sonnes, Whom, if I leave distract in factious hate. How can I hope to bid you once farwell, Since faring as I fee, you fare but ill? My time of residence is short in Rome, and yet too long, iflong you disagree, Be reconciled therfore to your selues, shake hands, embrace, be friendes, forget, forgine: why fomy Sonnes, thus should kind Brothers live. Now is my heart, disburthened of great care, To fee you my deare Sonnes accord so well,

And

And though I straight must part, take this fare ell left with you as my testimoniall will. Helpe honour, cherrish, love each other still, And thinke how oft you breake your amitie, So oft you act your fathers Tragedie.

Enter Caligula with a Racket and Tennis-ball in his hand.

Calif. Now a Gods name give me a hand Ball, For that a man may to se against the wall, Now vp, now downe, now slie, now fall, Yet hath no danger therewith all.

Come brother, will you play a fet?

Germ. Crosset o my comfort, & thy fathers grief Why doost thou still continew in these sits? What frantique humor hath berest thy wits? Cast downe Caligula, cast downe thy ball. (away Cali. Nay by Ladie Father, nay first take my life Take vp my ball, lay downe my Ball, tush, tush, To tennis with an Emperor is not worth a rush. Where's neuer a stroake but all in hazard plaide. No Father, ile doe with it as poore men doe With great mens injuries, put it vp till time serve.

Ger. Yet now at length, cease to torment my soule More scourg'd with forrow to behold thee thus, Then Priam was to see his Illion burne. Oh speake like to thy selfe, speake to my ioy, More ioy vnto ioy-rob'd Germanicus, Then was the Lidian Cresses dombe borne Sonne, Stopping his Fathers execution.

Calig. Not for the world father, pardon me:no, no. What? play the blab before such company?

Ger. What company's heere, onely but we three.

Cali. Mary too many fir, by he, and he.

Ger. Sonnes stand aside, while we confer together

Cali. Nay far enough, we neede no counsellors.

Ger. Not

Ger. Not on my bleffing till our talke be done. Cal. Then father loe, your Metamorphiz'd sonne, Changed in wit, and in condition chang'd, Whole heinih fit hath left at length to rage, And plague my fenfes with a lunacie, Which hath made me to be esteem'd a foole. And so I am, and deeme it best be so: For he that would live safe in brutish Rome, Father, a foolish Bratte must become. Ne blame me father, nor vpbraidme for't, His was by policie, mine by extacie, Which takes me cuermore in companie. Nor (but conjured by your reuerend commaund) Could I have halfe abstained from it thus. Ger. The strangest fit that euer I haue knowne. Which how er'e strong, yet striue to bridle it, Once give repulse and you the conquest get, But time cuts off our talke, my glasse is runne, And date of my abode is almost done, Say therefore how doth Agripina fare? What makes her stay? how brookes she my depart? Cal. Briefly to fay(my Lord) with an ill heart, For Lucius Pifo with this balefull newes, No sooner gaue her notice of your state, And suddaine expedition to the East, But as if some Torpedo had her toucht, A numming flumber rockt her sense afleepe, And in a swound fell downe betweenenine armes: Then scarce remembring how or where she was, She lockt her winding armes about my necke, And thinking me to be Germanicus, She feald a thousand kisses on my lippes, Each being steeped in a stream of teares: And then she sighes and straight begins to frowne, Thrife she distoynd the cherries of her lips As if the meant to speake, and thrise the spake.

I he I ragicall life and death

Her voyce feem'd dead in labour with her words, And onely rendered an abbortiue found, Till thrice recall'd at length recouered, She fighed forth, ah deare Germanicus! And wilt thou then so soone? What more she said, Drown'd in the fluent Ocean of her teares, Gasped a period to her abrupt speech.

Gor. Ahme! and doth she still continue thus?

Cal. Not now my Lord: for when as this was done, She wackt out of her slumbring extasse, Receyuing refruition of her senses, And then she blusht, and sight, to see her errour, And gan to frame excuses for her fault, Promising speedily to come to you.

Enter Piso and Agripina. Ger. And here the comes. My deare Agripina: Agri. Most deare Germanicus. Nero. Ah! see how th' extremitie of loyall loue. Surceedes in passions of affection, as it denieth passage to their speech. Dr. Curst be the authors through whose occasion Happes the disseuering of so sweet an vnion. Nero. Faine would she bid him stay, faine say fare-But feare and loue amaze her in misdoubt: She doubts to stay him, fearing to offend him, She loues too well, too willingly to leave him: Ger. Enforct, I doome the sentence of my death. For can I line if parted from my loue That art both essence of my loue and life? Enforc'd? I: yet not I, it is my tongue, Ore-ruld by too strict times necessitie, makes me pronounce this loathed word, farewell. Agri. Ill fare that word farewell, since by farewell I fare so ill: then bid me not farewell: Yet wish I not thy stay my dearest Lord, But

But that you would affent to one petition. Be not inquisitine, speake not at all, Vnlesse when as you speake, you say I shal. Ger. I shall my dearest deare, if so you shall aske onely what shall be convenient, and indisparageable vnto our good: Which for I doubt not speake I ginc consent. Agri. Then in thy little lesse then banishment. Refuse me not for thy companion, and this with teares I beg for ratified: Renoke not what is promis'd, nor excuse With arguments drawne from my fexe and life, Too weak too feeble, and vnfit for warre, Or by relating all the miseries, Long trauels, dangerous toyles, misfortunes, wants; For all the ills that issue out of warre, I have them past, or passe not what they are. Witnesse this lively Image of thy selfe, Of whom I was delivered in the campe, Bellona was my Midwife, and my paines Were eased by the aver-renting sounds, Of warlike Sackbuts, Clarions, and Drums. Ger. Thy loue doth make a wanton of thy leaue; and through extremitie of pallion, You make me halfe to feare you leaue to loue: Pardon me Agripina, if my loue through feare to loofe my loue, doth loue to feare, For life takes life from love, love growes from fear, Feare to dislike, feare to be faithlesse proou'd: Feare for to loose himselfe from his best belou'd, This fearing love, and loving fearefulnesse, Doth bind my heart, and prison vp my tongue: Why wouldst thouthis? I know thou wouldstit not, From Stately Rome vnto the Suns arise, So many miles, so many mischies lies: Where shouldst thou haplesse me accompanie,
The

The mischiefe were redoubled, and one houre, Perhaps should cause me die a double death. Once in my felfe, and ten times more in thee, Yet wouldst thou this? I know thou wouldst it not. Agr. Ay me, my Lord, your word controls my wil. Ger. Time entercepts niy time, adieu, Deare Agripina once againe adieu. Pilo. The time is now expired of our stay. And therefore you must either now agree, Or Madam gainst your will he must depart, For my part I will presently depart. Agri. Ah! stay a little while and I have done. (well Ger. Madam, for all the world I dare not: fare yes Agri. Andis your haste so great as his my Lord? Must Agripina then forsake her loue? Ger. Or else Germanicus must leauchis life. Therefore my deare, deare wife, and dearest sonnes. Let me ingirt you with my last embrace: And in your cheekes impresse a fare-well kisse, Kisse of true kindnesse and affectious loue. Bath'd in the licour of distilled raine, Which nere before dissolved into teares. Which falling lowly downe before your feete, Seeme for to begamutuall vnitie, To be continued after my depart. Which if you are resolued to maintaine, Then vieno dallying protractions, But now compendiously lets take our leaue, Agr. As wills Germanicus so mustit bee, Farewell deare Lord therefore, this way for me:

Exit Agripina. Nero, Drusus, and Caligula embrace Germanicus, and follow her. Germanicus at an other doore. (tors be,
Gr. Deare wise, deare sons, heavens your protecThe Gods our guide: farewell, this way for me.

Enter

Enter Tiberius and Scianns.

Ti. Thus is Germanicus our greatest scare dispatchs With subtill Piso to the Orient. Didst thou not see with what alacritie. All the Plebeians at his triumph showted At every period of his pleasing song? How that discordant quire redoubled · With their vntuned voyces relishing, Long live Victorious Germanicus? But hees dispatcht into Armenia, And soone shall be dispatche by Piso true. Seian. My Lord vpon mine honour Ile auerre. Speedie performance of this action. Iso inueagled Piso, so inwrapthim, So conjured his traiterous resolution, Storing the villaine with such poysonous druggs. As neuer Circe nor Acter knew. I so incenst his damn'd ambition, Soothing his humour, praising his great worth, Adding the fauours of Tiberius, That were Germanicus imperious Ione, Pife would poyfon him to gaine my loue. Tib. So much Seianus for Germanicus, But now an other cloud obscures our Sunne, Oflesser fauour, but of greater show, That same infamous Tigres Iulia. Nemia neuer faw a Lionesse Was halfe fo furious as is Iulia. Didst thou not see her yawning sepulchre Rauening to swallow vp my Emperie? Did the not thew Augustus testament. To have discarded me from regiment? How can I brooke it? Do not make replie, If Nero line, Inlia shall surely die, Sein. Then Seian. Then Iuliamake thy quicke confession.

Tiber. But yet there doth remaine a corassue,
A canker that doth gnaw my sessered soule,
Nero and Drusus yong Germanici,
Whose youth is guided by two elder starres,
Titius Sabinus, and Asinius,
Were these made Counsellers to Proserpine,
(For neither Minos nor sterne Eacus, Nor Rodamanthus were so inst as these,)
Nero and Drusus might be soone entrapt.
If that Scianus loues Tiberius,
If euer Nero did repay his loue,
Then see these Phosphori be made away,
That dimme the glorie of our happieday.
Heere take my Signet, vie what meanes those wit,

Be Emperour, so Imay hauemy will, For euen as sure as Nero drawes his breath, Asinius and Sabinus dies the death.

Seranus. If they did both Vlisse equalize,
Matchles Penolepes vnmatched mate,
And if Minerua should inclow'd their thoughtes,
As Cipria wrap ther Achesiades:
I, were Apollo their eternall friend,
They should not live if Nero sought their end.
Tiberius. Meane while, as cleare from all

Shallrue the absence of Tiberius.

Execute:

Shallrue the absence of Tiberius.

Enter Nerna, Sabinus, and Asinius.

Nerna. Who sees the Sunne incombred in darke
And

And exhal'd vapours dimme the welkins face,
Followed in pursuite with th' assaulting winde,
Which play their furious prizes in the ayre,
And not expects a sharpe tempessuous storme?
Sabinus, Who viewes the troubled bosome of the maine,

Endiapred with Cole-blacke Porpelies,
Prodigious Monsters, and presaging Signes,
Markt in th'appearance of vnwonted shapes,
Strange figures, and amazing Spectacles,
and lookes not for a civil warre of wayles? (true)

Assimin. Who sees the rules to bee vnfaigned And not prouides preuenting remedies, Well might hee producthe perrill to his paine. The Walles once battered by the boysterous Romaine,

And open passage forced to their foes,
Too late it is, for the engir't to plead
In matters, where forelight might frame availe.'
Folly it is to trust to had iwist.
Late providence procures long repentance,

And thus I quite you for similitudes.

Nerna. Cancell that quittance Gallus, Neruz

knowes,

How deepe ensearching is Asinius skill,
But yet I wonder you will sentence it,
Rather then to acquire the hidden sence.

Merua. I, such deepe sence as makes my sences droope.

Sabinus. No, sences droope where sence of il is Neru. Sharpe sencemay sensure ill, all thoughts vnshowne.

Asinius. Blinde is the censure of vncertainties.

Nerua. I, to the eye which sees what open lyes.

G-2

Sab. You

Sabi. You speake Enigmaes, doubtful and obscure.

Neru. Yet not so darke and hard, as true and sure.

Sabi. Then be mine Oedipus, interpret it.

Neru. Not Oedipus, it needes a searching wit,

A quicke conceite, an all observing minde,

Tis that that must explaine this hidden sence,

Such one was wont, aged Asinius haue,

Such grounded wisdome reaching at conceite,

Like as the fire in chimicke distillation,

Able to seperate the ellements.

But where fore weepes Asinius? thy griefe disclose,

Nerua will heare, and helpe, who hath like woes.

Asini. Not for my selfe I shed these brinish teares.

Neru. Teares shed for Romes estate doe drowne mine cies.

Sab. Hard state where vices line, and vertue dies. Ner. Witnesse the secret counsels which are kepts Whereto no state of Senate is requested, But olde establisht orders quite detested. Sab. Like to a butchered body, Rome is rent. And secret factions, compleate treacheries, Are common fet abroach by each degree-Ner. Nero hath tane adiew of stately Rome. And poasted downe into the Countrie, Nothing regarding his imperial state. And heere Scianus reuils all alone, Free from the checke of Magistrates controule, Commaunding all, as he were Emperour. Sab. And with him keepes the high Augusta heere, But to what end, the Gods alone doe know: Who graunt that all may iffue to the best. Asin. Amen, Amen, my minde presageth ill; And fay we what we can theile have their wills

Exeunt Asinius, Nerna and Sabinus.

Enter Iulia and Scianus.

Iulia. And dare Tiberius worke old Iuliaes deathe
Seia. Excel-

Sein. Excellent Lady, worthy Iulia, Voon mine honour Nero seckes your life. Inl. And can the heavens fre and not revenge? Not mad Orestes Cistemnestraes Sonne Was fo vnnaturall as this beare-whelpe is. I did conceiue the villaine in my wombe, Which now I hate because it fostered him. Could I not get some Taxus to have made, My wombe abortive, when I him conein'd? Nero, ah Nero! did Inot procure, Thy first adoption by Augustus bounty? Caius and Lucius, thy elder Bretheren, One in Armenia, th'other lost in Spaine, And all that thou the Empire migh'st obtaine. Proud Phaeton, assend thy Fathers throane, And rouse the frozen Serpent from his Denne. Father of darkenelle, Patrone of confulion, Reduce the Caos of eternall night. Let heaven & earth, & aire, bee brought to nough For Neroliues, and Iuliaes life is fought. Seia. In vaine the furie of such idle thoughts, Doe but augment the habit of your pallion, The Virgin ayre doth onely heare your moanes, Which fleeting takes no impression of your griefe. In vaine you doe implore, the sencelesse creature, For to vibinde the chaine of constant nature. 14%. Seianus I wise Seianus I louely man, What shall I call thee to obtaine thy loue? And yet I know, thou louest Iulia. Seia. Madam, vpon my honour I protest-Iul. Protest no more, Seianus sweare no more, L'doe beleeue thou louest Julia: And may I trust Scianus with my loue? Seia. And may you trust Scianus with your loue? If I had not engag'd my honours pawne, If I had not admired Iulias Loued

Loued Augusta more then mine owne life. How durst I have disclosed Casars drifts. Brokemy allegiance to my soueraigne, Clearing the mistie cloudes of his revenge. But that I lou'd you more then all the world. Inlia. Why then Scianus counsell Iulia. Aduise Augustain her deepe extreames, Were it not cunning, tell me gentle friend, For to beguile the Lion of his pray? Seian. Augusta, Cæsar is your noble sonne. Inlia. I, but he seekes the life of Iulia. Scian. Madam, he may be moved to pittie you. Iulia. Shall Iulia then entreat degenerate man, That neuer knew Augustaes royall spirit? Did Sophonisba beg her princely life, Or Anthonies Egyptian parramour? Did Philips high resolu'd Olympias. Crouch to Seleucus for her wearie dayes. And shall Augustaroyall Iulia, Crouch, beg, entreate her boy Tiberius? Seian. Lady not so Seianus will entreate. Inlia. Nor thou, nor any, shall entreat for me, Didnot I beare him? who shall beg my life? I shame to heare thy foolish pittying, Did not we make Tiberius Emperour? And can we not depute Tiberius? Where are those volumes of inventions, Which once had residence in thy conceit? Those massacres and golden pollicies, That ore thy fortunes ever houered? Record Scianus all thy Chronicles Dine to the bottome of thy memorie, And plot some laborinth of villanie. Do not Seianus all in vaine contend; Nero, or Iulia, or both must end. Sinn, Royall Augusta, Iulia commaund,

The vtmost that Seianus can invent. Madam, you know that Cælar three dayes fince, Remou'd his Court vnto Campania, Where by his Orchard-Inlia. What by his Orchard? speake Scianus, speak, What doth the smoke of Lerna lurke thereby? Or Thebane Sphinx, or Memphis Crocadile, What Diplas, or what Monster can we find, But halfe so cruel in his proper kind? Seia. There is a Caue Spelunca call'd, Vaulted by arte, made by Geometrie, Whofetop is wouen with a wauing vine, The leaves of tempred plaister flagging downg. Are fann'd with motion of each little wind: The ruddie clusters of the grapes appearing, Liuely engrauen in dependant stones, Neuer Mausolus, nor Amphions towers, Nor Asiaes immortall workmanship, Dianaes Temple halfe so curious, as this entrenched earthly Paradife. But which encreaseth most a mazing wonder, With turning of one stone all fall's a funder. Inna. What of this? what of the Cane Seianus? Seian. Here oftentimes the wearie Emperour, Doth banquetand refresh his troubled mind, Inha. Enough Seianus, promse to turne the stone, Iulia is ficke, Augustamust be gone. Ser. Madam, vpon mine honour ile make him fure, Inha. Farewell Scianus, I must needes be gone. Exit Iulia. Manet Scianus soius. S ian. Madam farewell. Go stepdame Iulia,

S ian. Madam farewell. Go stepdame Iulia,
Plot with Seianus for Tiberius death,
But first go tell the Queene of scarefull Disse,
and read a lecture there of policie,
Neuer to trust a friend in secrecie.
So then Seianus here Epitomize
all thy deuises for to get the crowne.

Betwixt

Betwixt thy hopes and thee are seauen lights. Seauen wandring planets, seauen obstacles. Tiberins Cafar, and Germanicus. The triple offpring of Germanicans Iulia, Agripina, and Liuca: All these Seianns twixt thy hopes and thee. But for Germanieus hee is eclipst, His Orient of honour is obscur'd, I hope ere this by Pisoes diligence. Iulia is in her struggling agonic, Beswixt the poylon and concoction: Drusus, Tiberius sonne, I meane to speede, Andmake his father for to murther him. Euenthus the Caue I told to Iulia, Is verie true. I doe not vse to lie, Not to complet the deepest villanie. Nor did I lie, ther's fuch a Caue indeede. And with one stone I can consume the worker Some stender shallow polititiza now, Would deeme it here a point of wondrous reach To murther sonne and father in this Caue. Not so. Seianus hath a farther scope, Deeper conceit, and farre more misticall: The Caue shall fall and yet Tiberins live, But I will feeme to vnderprop the Caue, With these my pillars, and beareall the loade, So shall I get more fauour with the Prince, That whom soeuer I shall countenance, Shall seeme as ere repealed Oracles. Then will I worke this credulous concert, To what impression my braine inuents, He to Campania. Now first haue at his sonne, Then for himselfe when all my plot is done. Exit Scianus.

Enter Germaniens, and Piso at one doore, Venenes and bis some at the other.

Ger. Vonones though this proudrebellion Disturbe the vniuersall vnitie. although this vtmost member of the world. Hath made a separation from the head: Though thou and thy proud sonne in daring armes Haue made our Eagles sweat in thy pursuite: Yet know a Roman is thine enemie, Whose Legions farre surpasse in Chiualrie. The triple Phalaux of Armenia. Were euerie man a furious Elephant. Rul'd by a Castle of Numidians, These Germane Legions would encounter them and these new squadrons out of Italy, Would strine with them in glorious emulation, Till with the spoile of vanquisht Elephants, They might encampe a pale with Iuorie. Yet know my mercie farre exceedes my strength, an Olives branch wreath'd with humilitie. Shall win more favour with Germanicus, Then all the Enlignes in Armenia can. Speake then Vonones, wilt thou fight or yeeld? Von. Germanicus, as to my hostile friend. Vonones knowes thy honourable minde, admires, but nothing fearesthy victories. Except thy person, Thus much for your state. Germanicus, tis no rebellion, Fortomaintaineour ancestors renowne, It is your pride to fecke Dominions, Finding occasions still to conquer all a First Romulus encreast his Colonies By ruine of his neighbour borderers, Within the circuit offaire Italy, Subjected to your Lordly Empiries

Then must Scicilia be your grauarie, Carthage be fackt for emulation, Spaine must find horses, France an enemie. Because that Brennus scal'd the Capitoll, Yong Philip in the fecond punicke warre, Must be reclaim'd by old Æmilius, Mithridates for helping Perfeus, Must pay a ransome of all Asia To Taurus Mountaine; yet not so content, Except he yeeld vp Lisimachium, For him Tigranes, Ptolomie for Anthonie, My Grandsire for great Pompeys dignitie, Must yeeld the title of his royaltie: Romanes, you wrong the world by falle pretences. To make them al your vassaile Provinces: How did the Britaines wrong your Empirie? The Gallogretians, or the Scithians? What did Numidia, or what did Germanie? The late Caracter of thy victorie. Let fearefull Cowards to the Romanes yeeld: Vonones will fight out this blodie field.

Exeunt both wayes, and enter against o fight. Vonones and his sonne flie. Enter Germanicus and Piso.

Ger. Now are these Orientall braueries quail'd these rauening wolues hem'd in their lurking dens: Tigramenta, were it proud Babylon, Glew'd with Alphaltes slime impenetrable, Were it Pireus, or Seleucia, Germanicus would neuer leaue assault. Till it were subiest to Germanicus. Sound them a parley.

Germanicus speaketh.

Ger. Vonones, first to thy vpbraiding taunts,
Whic

Which then thy furie would not let thee heare, Thou callest vs Romanes too ambicious, Competitors to all the worlds Demaine. Proud to infult vpon Dominions, By faigned thew of some received wrong: First know Vonones that great Romulus, Divinest ofspring of th' immortal Gods. Neuer vsurpt vpon his neighbour bounds. Without the just occasion of revenge: Witnesse the tempests of the Solines troopes. And Titias Titaias doubtfull trecherie: Scicilia weredeem'd from seruitude, From Carthage bondage, whose ambicious pride, Five hundred thousand slue in Italy: Spaine as abettors of false Hanniball, Subdued by Africans to our rule, France, Philip, Perseus, and Mythridates, Tigranes, Ptolomie, and Numidians, Bold Brytons, Scithians, Gallogrecians, Neuer without defiance were surprizde, Neuer without iust cause we them defied: Vonones thou dost know this to be true, Yet your presumption makes you all to rue. Vono. Germanicus were all the Romane spirits, Imbarkt within thy royall curtefie, Or were thy spirit infused into all, Tigranocerta by the die of warre, Should never make my realme vnfortunate. Vonones would be to Germanicus A vassaile subject, tributarie King. Ger. Vonones, not vnto Germanicus, But vnto Nero bend thy humble knee: If at our Eagle thou wilt lay thy crowne, Then faile to Rome, and in the Capitoll There reintreate great Casars clemencie, Yeeld vp thy Cities and dismisse thy force. Vonones

Vonones I admire thy valourous minde,
This is the way to find Tiberius kinde.

Vono. Germanicus, how much I honour thee!
Vonones fawnes not for his libertie,
For know, before that tyrant shall insult
Ouer the Armenian Orientall Prince,
Euen by the Sun, and all his counsellors,
The autour of our royall progenies,
Scale, burne, assault, batter, vndermine,
Renue as oft your wearied Legions,
as Polinices, or the Thebane wall,
Nothing but death Vonones shall enthrall.
Germ. Then to the fight,
and heaven I trust will ay de vs in our right.

Germanicus and Piso scale the walles, Germanicus is repulst the first assault, Piso vinneth the wall first, but is in danger by Vonones and his sonne: Germanicus rescuesh Piso, Vonones and his sonne slie.

Che fara, fara, maugre all their force,
Tigranocerta, is subdued to vs.
Romanes assault the Keepe, let them not breath,
Till with the cinders of the fired Tower,
Your dreadfull furie cleane dissoluted be.

Sound a parley within.

Piso. But harke, th' Armenians doe a parly craue, I thinke thei'l yeeld, and so our labour saue.

Ger. Then sound terror to their melting hearts.

They resound a parley, and Uonones on the Keepe.

Von. Germanicus, and Romane conquerours, Imperious Lords of Fortunes Emperie,

Vonones here vpon his suppliant knee,

Which euer yet was like the Elephants,

That had no sinew, had no bending ioynt.

Here he that neuer begg'd, doth now entreat

Aboone, a glorious boone: Germanicus, Tis not my life: Vonones heart would breake Before his tongue should be his Oratour. Tis not Captiuitie, nor Towne, nor Friendes, Nor Realme, nor wife, nor my posteritie, Germanicus, it is a boone offame Vonones beggs, that nere will beg againe. Ger. And as I live, Vonones shall obtaine. How honour crost by chance, reviues againe? Vonones. Then thus, in fingle combat I defie, Some worthy man at armes, that dare performe, This honorable challenge in the field, If that Vonones live, this is the boone. For foure and twentie houres to have my scope For to ordaine a new fupply of warre. If I be van quish't, vse the law of armes. Germ. Discend Vonones, on my honours pawne For to performe this resolution.

Romaines, on your alleagiance be gone,
Perswasson is the fight of present death:
I see the Garlands dangling in the skies,

Of Coruin and Torquates victories.

Vonones being wounded. lampe;
Von. Curs'd bee the houre, and curssed bee the Which gives the influence to my haplesse being:
I had not deem'd that twentie thousand soules,
Could have ore quelled in a single fight,
My armour, purpled with vermillion blood,
(More then the Scarlet blush the maker gaue:)
You hels bred suries, I plague you all in hell,
That thus do torture me: come on thou Targ of Rome.

Fight againe, and Vonones is slaine.

Ger. Ahnoble Spirit, and art thou quite extinct?

H. 3. Gallane

Gallant Vonones much I pittie thee,
Too much dere earth oppresse him not with weight
Whose minde was eleuated whilst he lived.
Let lillies decke his ever-slowring toombe,
And Rosets border on his wayled grave,
Sweet Nightingales participatehis breath,
Helpe to immortallize his glorious death.

Piso and all the Romaines come downe from the wall to Germanicus, and Germanicus speaks to them.

Now brave Centurions, worthy Legions, After the night of labour, honours day Bring foorth the murall Crowne and Ornaments. Pil. Germanicus, whosehead shall this adorne? Ger. His that deferu'd it, and I deeme' twas L. Pif. Know nay Germanicus, but it was I That first repulse th' Armenians from their walles, First pitcht my Eagle in the conquered Towne, Not honour, nor imperious ambition, Can make a Romaine yeeld his honours title. I scald the sconce, therefore the Crowne is mine, I pitcht mine Eagle, mine are the Ornaments; And by my soule, and by Bellonaes night, Piso will have his owne, his Crowne, his right. Ger. Piso shall have his owne, shal have his right, But for the murall Crowne (my honours meede) The glorious Signet of my victorie: First stars shall turne vpon this earthly pole. Bound to this shadie Orbes circumference. And heards of beafts shall graze on earthly pasture Betwixt the Lyon and the double Beare, Nature turn'd topsey turuey fore that day, Piso my honours Crowne shall braue away. Pi/. Braue! Pifo will not Braue, his deeds shal plead Ger. His deedes alacke are tongue-tide Oratours, Without ambition I pleade my right. Did.

Did not Imy solfe in th' first assault,
Thrice change my Target ouer poys'd with Darts?
Did not I brandish in the second sight,
My burning Semiter? that all their eies,
Could not indure the heate of his restection?
Then in the midst of all the frontiers strength
Hew'd me a passage to Vonones Sonne,
Whose dying Ghoast bare record of my force,
That did dismay their power, disman their walles,
There six mine Eagle, then vinbard their Gates,
And streight remounted to assault the Keepe.
Perchance that Piso by some posterne gate,
Crept through a meuse, & by the winding stayres,
Panisng and breathlesse, stale up to the walles.
But I———

Pif. Nay stay Germanicus, my heart doth throb,
Mine eares doe glowe, to heare thy brauing taunts:
I am a Soldier, and as good as thou,
But for the childish rumor of thy name:
And shall I loose by these insulting tearmes
The Crowne of honour that I have deserved?
Not one sault drop of Sweat, that I have spent;
But honours sountaine shall repay againe.
Germanicus, Piso will have his due,
Or thou or heathis fact of thine shall rue.

Centur. My Lords, what dismal surie doth enchat Your noble Spirits to this mortall strife? The Romaine millitarie lawes enforce, That in the segrate demurres the Soldiers quest, Should give the honour by a whole consent: Are you my Lord Germanicus content, And you Lord Piso with our Romaine lawes? Ger. Worthy Centurion with all my heart. Piss. I must perforce, or else not have my part, Cent. Speak Soldiers, Piso or German. (Germanicus, Sol. Germanicus, Germanicus, the Crowne is to Cent. Trunt-

Centu. Trumpets, relate to heaven this Vnitie Germanicus sitteth downe, Pijo at the other end of the Stage Sprinckleth Tumder on the Crown, and then he las. teth it on Germanicus bis head. Trumpets sound. Pif. Host the Crowne, but I have won the day. Long live Victorious Germanicus. Ger. Piso grieue not at Iustice equitie. Mine honour's dearer Pifo then my life. Except this grudge, Pilo, I honour thee. Depute thee Lord Armenian gouernour, To grace thy vertue and reward thy paine. Farwell good Pilo, ile to Antioche. Exit. Ger. & Sol Pif. I.goe Germanicus but nere returne. That Crowne shall be the last thouere shalt weares That garland decks thy speedy funerall: If that Germanicus passe Antioche. Pifo's a foole, Seianus had no wie: That powder which I sprinckled on the leaves.

Me of my death, him of his life bereaues. Exit Pife.

Enter Tiberius Solus. Tib. Iam dispos'd to meditate alone, Here in my Orchard, let none dare trouble mes These Poppies too much aspire, they are too high. I must needes make them headlesse for their pride. And furetheir seede, would breede a deadly sleepe, Should Inot crop them, in their flowring prime: These marigolds, would follow with the Sunne If I should suffer them to sprout on high, Butile confine their stature to my measure; So will I doe with all competitors. Here's an olderoote doth hide the riling plants. And that doth make me thinke on Iulia. Where is Scianus, that incarnate divell, Hath he not ended yet my greatest euill? I doc misdoubt the Villaine, oh the slave !

He may bewray me to the Senators;
He may disclose me vnto Iulia;
He may discouer me to Germanicus;
He may doe what he will, to seeke my end.

Exit Tiberius.

Enter the Ghost of Germanicus.

Ghoast. Ingratefull Nero, and ingratefull Rome,
Vnto the merrits of Germanicus,
Reuenge my causelesse wrongs, great Proserpine,
Who murthered was by hatefull treacherie.
Me thinkes I am a man, and now could raue,
That nere before did know what anger ment.
This murall crowne wrought my vntimely death,
By Pisoes enuic, and Tiberius pride.
Germanicus, poore soule doe not complaine.
For prayers cannot thy life restore againe,
I will goe seemy Children and my wise,
That I may thinke on them in this new life.

Exit Ghoast.

Enter Agripina at one doore, Drusus and Nero at the other crying out as from their Beds. Ner. My father, my deare Lord Germanicus. Agr. My husband, my deare Lord Germanicus. Dru. my father, my deare Lord Germanicus, Mother and Brother, helpe Germanicus, Fiesluggish Brother, draw thy balefull sword, Mother, fling wilde fire at the Crockadile, For nothing else can peirce his brazen skales. Agr. Drusus, what spirit doth disturbe my Sonne? Dru, Mother, me thought I saw Martichora, The dreadfull hiddeous Ægiptian beaft, Horrid and rough flimy and terrible, Fac'das an Hidra like some vnquoth man, Whose carer hang drayling downevnto hir feete, Sweeping

Sweeping the loath some soile with greedinesse. Fang'd with three Iron grates of steely tuskes, Walleyed, with collour steept in deepest bloud, With Lyons clawes, and Scorpions poylonous sting Wouen in Gorgia; hundreth thousand knots. His murniuring found, mixt of two Simphonies, Rebellowed twixta flute, and trumpets found. That seem'd the world with roring to confound. By him me thought I faw a gallant beaft, A princely Lyon, crown'd with honours meede, At which this vgly Monster wrought amaine, For to defeate the Lyon of his pray, But all in vaine, till this deceitefull beaft, Belcht foorth an ayrie death, infecting breath, At which me thought the Lyon vanished. Andmy deare Father, great Germanicus, Plac'd in his roome by this beaft perrished: Twice thus I dream't, and still my thinkes I dreame, But mother, what did your affrighting meane? Agrs. Oh Sonne! I dream't that in the azure skye. For one Epicicle two Sonnes did striue, One darted rayes, th' other rainebowes made: One suckered plants, the other moou'd the fire: One shining tother dimme: one true, tother false. And in this discordall in heavenly motion, The hoast of starrie cloudes did hide the ayre. These hideous monsters met in furious rage, As if the world had beene dissevered, Like when a Whale runs in the boysterous maine, Seeming to shoulder all the yeelding waves, So by contrition of this dawning night, The Axeltree of heaven did seeme to mooue: From whence, as from an anuile feem'd to streams. A day of lightning, and a thunder bolt, Which rendring passage to the Orient, Seem'd for to light uppon Germanicus: The

This frighted Agripina in her Dreame, But Nero what did thy vostarting meane? Nere. My thought I sawe a snowy emilke white Encountring with a rauening bloody Stork. (Swan When in the furious heate of all their broyle, The Storke was succoured by a neighbour Crane, The Swan relieued by a dunghill Cocke, Allioyne in battaile, all to furious. But whether by faire Venus prayers to Ioue, Or other fate, the Swan and gallant cocke, Ceaz'd on the Crane, and carkasse of the Storke, All which feem'd pleafing to my flumbring fence, But all too rufull that which after fell, Fell discord twixt the Swan, and Cocke arose, The peerelesse Swanne was worthy Conquerour, But yet alas the gallant Cocke.—

Enter Maximus a messenger from Germanicus, he

Where is the Porter with the Citties watch?

Max. Open, ah open vnto Maximus.

Dr. Thefaithful Maximus, God send good newes.

Enter Maximus.

Agr. Too much I see, I dare not hearethe rest,
And yet I will:nay farwell Maximus,
I will not feare, yet feare comes gainst my will,
Mine eares are stopt, how doth Germanicus?

Max. O! were I mute, or had my carefull nursse,
Nere taught this dolefull Engine for to speak;
Then should my soule in mourning silence groane.

Agr. Ah deere Maximus by all that ere was deare
Within thy trustie heart, make no delaies,
Tel Agripina; rid her of her seare,
My heart is hardned euen the worst to heare. (Rome
Max. Then Madam sithence we left this stately
1 2 Proud

Proud in the Triumphes of Germanicus. My Lord first sayled to Brandusium, So to Achain and from thence to Rhodes, From thence to Ephelus, from Ephelus To Lisimachium we bent our course, Thenceto the mountaine Taurus marcht Lyland, Sheluing on which we coast Armenia, and in her firtill bowels pitcht our Tents. Vonones three leagues off displaide his flag, The scarlet Enfigne of his bloody minde, There like two heards of Lyons, we inrang'd Our squadron to their Phallax, to their darts, Our flings : against their Cammels, all our horse. Betwixt our armies Tigris swiftly ran, and there within a league on our right hand, A deepe-delu'd Caue, (fit ambush to intrap) All vaulted with a young disprayed groue. Here with five hundreth foot-men light of armes, My Lord did placeme till he gaue the figne: So in the heate our Legions feem'd to flye, Till all Vonones armie past the floud, And in pursuite of our supposed flight, There all enuironed with hidden troopes, That faw Vonones and his fierie Sonné. And some few more, which them accompained, We made an ende of this rebellion. Tigranocerta then we all inclos'd, And wonneit, and my Lord Germanicus, In fingle combat, flew their governor. Ag. Ahmy deare Lord! how fares Germanicus? Max. I, thats the dismallnewes I have to tell, Leaving the Orient thus in settled peace, And Piso Pretor of Armenia, We marched to the Cittie Antioche. Whereas my Lord had heard were Christians, Iudeian Priestes, the which did magnific, An

An vnknowne God, in dayly pietie. Before the Cittie grew a Cipresse Groue, Strew'd vnderneath with fading Violets, Where Gastly Screach-owles hold their residence, True Prodigies, of fatall miseries. about the midday of Antipodes, When our Horrizon was benum'd with sleepe, a furie and a passion both at once, Began surprize my Lord Germanicus. Agr. Oh heavens! -She fainteth and is upheld by Dru. Mother you promis'd for to heare the worlt and can you not indure the first assault? Agrip. Yes Maximus, tell out the dyrest wo. My hart conceives more griefthen thou canst shew Max. What time the liuing diall of the night, His first alarum, rang to Cipria, Gall of my foule, I faw that woefull fight, Wherein my Lord (tormented) meekely lay, Like to a Lyon in his generous kinde, Doth gnaw the earth, in felnesse of his minde, Grudging forrow but disdaines to moane, Or rore in torment of his agonic, So lay Germanicus in grieuous paine: Yet griefe from outward shew did much restraine, But feeling that his spirits gan to faile, and vitall pulses leave their motion, He cald for Plato, and there two houres red, Of the immortall essence of the Soule, So constant in his soules Divine releeving, That griefe euen grieu'd herfelfe, for him not gric-Then to his friendes, he gaue this last farwell, Deare friendes, and worthy countrymen adiew, Had I in this faire May of all my glorie, By fates Eternall hand beene catche from earth, Imightaccusethe Iustice of the Gods: But fince by Pilo, and his poy sonous drugs, Germa-

Germanicus is losts reuenge my death.

Agri. Enough, too much: O I can be are no more,
Good Nero goe, run to Sabinus house. (Exit Nero
And treate him come, and comfort thy sad mother,
Drusus goe thou vnto Asinius lodge, (Drusus
And wooe him hether to thy sorowing Mother. Exit
But was my Husband poysoned by that slaue?
O Monstrous hell-hound of ambition!

Max. No man could proue it, but it was surmis'de

Both by the dying words of my deare Lord,
And by the fuddaine swelling of his head,
That like a snow white Leaper was defilde.
As by the heart of great Germanicus,
Whose body being burnt, that yet vntoucht,
A certaine note of poyson still remain'd,
Which I embalmed wit!: Arabian spices,
Mixt with the ashes of my dearest Lord:
Haue in this Allablaster box preseru'd,
The onely Relique of this Tragedie,
Which to you worthy Ladie I present,
Yours it was living, yoursit must be dead.

Agrip. I had it living, and must have it dead, all may be fall that must necessitie.

Flye living soule, into this sustlesse heart,
That it may animate my greater part.

Or else (Oh Gods) graunt this felicitye
That here my breathing soule may tombed be.

Mone eyes shall drizell down Arabian mirrhe,
To garnish all Armenian infections
Or falling from my eye-balles covered be,
With this faire cover of sad miseries.

Insust needes looke vpon this last reliefe,
Which swels, as being angry for my griefe.

Ah my Germanicus! thus to hold thy heart,
Yeeldes me no comfort, but augments my smart.

Nero returneth.

Ner. Mother

Ner. Mother, Sabinus some two houres since, Is gone to visite faire Elizium.

Agri. What to thy Father my Germanicus?

Druss. Mother, Asinius Gallus very weake, Expects the fatall houre of his death, Phistians tell him he is poysoned.

Agrip. Too much my Sonne, great forrow still is dumbe. Exeunt omnes.

Enter Plebeians with one of Maximus his Soldiers.

1. And is it true, did Piso poyson Germanicus?

Sold. True, I as true as this is an Armenian Louse, that bit me by the backe, & I am sure I carried none out of Rome with me: for his head sweld, his hayre would not burne, and hee dyed in a surie, and we alknow that Piso had mortall hatted against him because he wold not let him have his mural crown.

2.0 Germanicus Germanicus! oh good Germanicus! the very hünisuckle of humanity. & the Mary-gold of magnanimitie: Piso is not to be copared to him. Piso noc, he is to him (euen in the creame of his nature) the verie lees of licentious fines, the Veriuice of villany, the very excrement of euil, & which is more, he had no reason to poyson him.

3 Good Germanicus, oh when shall I make thee an other payre of boots that would even smile whe they should come vppon his legges? O I shall never make such merrie bootes againe, for all the drie leather in my shop I warrant will weep intirely when they heare this newes.

Sol. Confert to me, Piso will be heare presently (he thought to have been e heere before vs) consent to me, lets plague him for Germanicus.

rosta Cat. (quicke

2 Nay, lets drowne him aliue, or else bury him Sold. Nay

Sold. Nay, will you all keepe touch, and weele teare him ion the joynt when wee have got him, therefore stand close, for I heare his horse neigh, the Assemble be heere presently.

Enter Piso.

Pis. Haile Mother Rome.

Sol. I, stormes of vengeance on thy cursted head,

1. Where is Germanicus? speake!

2. Speak! what hast thou done with Germanicus?

Pis. I cannottell.

All. But wee will make thee tell.

They drag him in, and enter againswith his lims in their hands, they shout and cry. (Lord

Omnes. Thus have we sent revenge to our deare. Thus have we sent Germanicus revenge.

Excunt. Omnes.

Of

Enter Tiberius and Seianus out of the Caneo Tibe. Sejanus. Sein. My Lord. Tibe. Ho Sejanus. Seia. Here my gracious Lord. Tibe. A plague vpo him, that first made this Caue It was not sumptuous, not faire enough To be the Tombe of a live Emperour. Thankes to my Genius, and thy providence, That hath defended me from farther ill, And yet my shoulders feele the heavie loades Sirraabrush: Vanish the monuments of antique worldes; Mew'din externall silence be obscured, Not Thefius lone vnto Perrithous Not Alexanders to Haphestion, Northetwo Bretheren of Paris sworne. That in eternall courses scale the heavens. Did ever manifest such demonstrations,

Of faith vnfaign'd, and more then Turtle-doue, Saued my life, now by my Geneus If all the world were tenstimes multiplied, And one of them were made of massie golds Enameled with Pearles and Diamonds. Embost with Iasper and Alites vertue: Yea were all the leimaginarie worlds, Vnder Tiberius his dominion, This world, this rough-cast world with precious Should be the guerdon of my faued life. Ahmy Scianus, what can Nero find, To counter-ballance such a faithfull minde. Seian. Most gracious Cæsar mightie Emperour, Had Pellion and Cossa beene conjoy nd, Had mounting Tenarus with the snowie Alpes, And high Olympus ouerwhelm'd the Caue, Yet would Scianus (like Briarius) Haue beene embowell'd in this earthichell. To saucthe life of great Tiberius. Tib. Now have I tried the trunesse ofthy stampe, Bith' touchstone of this late oppression, Nero repayes thy loue with vsurie, But by my Geneus how this suddaine feare Hath made vs cleane forget our mothers care. Tell me Seianus, how fares Iulia? Seiz. My Lord she doth comend her to your grace But very weake vpon a surfet taken. Tib. As how Scianus? old folkes vse good dier. Seia. And so did she my Lord, at supper time She tooke a kernell of restoratine, In a Pomgranet, which did so prevaile, As that left her licker with her Philicke: Asinius and Sabinus her deare friends. From that Apothecarie did receive, The like restorative with like effect: And then I poasted to your Maiestie. Tib. Iulia

Tib. Iulia, Sabinus, and Afinius, For each a teare, so to Elizium. But what Scianus note I in thy face? The feale of feare though well dissembled, Are they not all dispatcht why dost thou feare? Scian. Vpon mine honour all are perished. (foule? Tib. What doth thy conscience then disturbe thy What meanes the carelesse rowling of thine eyes? Thy louing forow, foulding of thine armes? Thy suddaine fighs, thy wavering countenance? Now all thy blood doth ebbe into thy heart, Now all thy blushing visage ouer-flowes, Speake my Scianus, fauer of my life, And by my Geneus thou shalt obtaine. Seia. Feare and allegiance, dutie and affection. Honour and pittie loyaltie and lone, Raise mutuall tumults in my clouen heart, Tsb. Speake good Scianus, Nero longs to heare. The mutinous discention of thy feare. Seian. May be my Lord Scianus feares in vaine. Tib. Let Casar know, least Casar feare in vaine Seian. What if my Lord it do concerne my hurt? Tib. Yettell to Cxfar who can cure thy hurt. Seia. Iam perswaded that it is but forg'd. Tib. Well, how soeuer I commaund thee shew. - Sein. Faulter my tongue thou dolefull instrument, Infortunate to tell so bad a storie. Pardon my Lord. Til. Scianus I commannd. And by my Geneus I will be obeyed. Seia. Then heavens beare witnes what I do record Comes of no malice nor ambition, For of mine honour I do thinke it forg'd. My Lord, fince you lay in Campania, It is a rumour blowne by vulgar winde, That you will never backe returne to Rome, lcould

I could not gesse on what presumption: But when I first assaulted Iulia. And the had swallowed up the poysonous baight. Faith then in love vnto her Ladiship, I told her that your grace did seeke her death. Not Menus with the frantike dames of Thrace, (That in their Dionisian sacrifice. Mangled the bodie of poore Pentheus) Raued like Iulia in her passion. Tib. O how it doth me good to heare her mad! Seia. May it please your Maiestie to give meleave Here to set downe a dolefull period. Ti. No by my Geneus Nero will heare all. Seias After the furie, anger tooke her thrones Like a fierce Lion chaft to feeke reuenge, When wooing me with many honie words. Ofgood, and wife, and friend, and debonaire, Idle sinononimies of womens wit, the all to prayed my constant secrecie And I to heare the fumniall exigent, Swore neuer to reueale her policie Whilest Iulia and Scianus both should live. And I have kept my promise with her to. Then did the seeme to wood me with her lookes. But good my Lord let here Scianus leaue, For on mine honour all may be but forg'd. Tib. If thou concealest but one sillable, Nero will hate thee in eternitie. Sera. My Lord, great Iulia said she would prevent Tiberius in his Tygers crueltie: She fwore my ayde, the fwore my fecrecie, Adding a gift to euerie worde shespake: This Ring, this Signet of Augustus Armes,

This Iewell, picture of your noble father, Yet Iulia you know my Lord was wife, And all may be but forged pollicie:

She

She faid how the devised had the plot. In this Campanian cecession. (Oh Gods forfend) to end Tiberius daies? Tib. Tis well Scianus shee's but proceede. Seia. The day before the blustering Ides of March Which as I take it, this day is expired. (That made me poste 'o hastily from Rome) On this same fatall day olde Iulia swore. Hir Sonne Tiberius should be poysoned. But by whose means, my Lord I must concease. For of mine honour I doethinke it forg'd. Tiber. Conceale a Traytor, and my guard shallon Thy iounted carkasse: goe too telme all. Sein. Why then my Lord, imagine all is false. And what I fay is all but counterfaite. Doe not conceive that Drusus your deare sonne Aspires to be a present Emperour: Beleeuenot that this day he makes a feast. Where mightie Cxfar, should be poysoned. Thinke not that Spado that Twig soone bent to il Is now corrupted to performe the act, Who tasting first vnto your Maiestie, With a Vine-branch enfoulded on his arme Will squease in poysonous drugs to slay my Lord, Imagine this to be alying dreame, Though Iulia sware and vow dit should be so, And made great ioyance, that it should be so; Beleeue it not furely she said not true, For on mine honour I doethinke it forg'd. Tiber. No, no, Sejanus, I have well obseru'd, The haughtie stomackeof th'affiring Boy, But Ile pull downe his lofty crefted plumes, And teach him homage to his foueraigne. How dare the stragling elfe, once looke on mee. And not be turn'd into an Aspen leate, To tremble at each brea, hed fillable? Scia. Be Seia. Be patient good my Lord, perhaps tis false:

Or be it true, as who would once conceiue,
Such headlong furie in ambitious thoughts?
Did not Mithridates Pontus King,
Forgiue Phraates his rebellious Sonne?
Did not Iugurthus father, often checke
His high aspiring thoughts? yet him forgaue:
Tiber. Talke offorgiuenesse in some pettie Kings
Not in the state of mightie Emperors,
This day he dooth provide Thy estas feast,
And bids his father to the bloudy cates.
Perswade me not, Scianus I will goe,
I have already promis'd him to come,
And if the villaine offer me these drugs,
Ile make him swill the cup, I should carrouse.

Enter Spado toward them.

But heere comes Spado his fine instrument,
See where his Garland is, ile stab the Slaue.

Sera. No good my Lord, how can you then inquire
The hatefull Treasons of your wicked Sonne?

Tib. Tis true Seianus, I will hold my hands.

Sera. Oh how I fear d I should have beene betraid
Spad. Ever Augustus! Druins royall banquet,
Requires the presence of Tiberius.

Tiberi. Spadowe come.

They draw afide the Arras, and banquet on the stage,
Spado testeth to Tiberius, and after insuseth the posson.

To New Cafar in this Cup of wine.

Tiber. Drufus doe thou begin vuto Tiberius.

Dru. My Lord may 't pleafe you here is other wine.

Tibe. Buttafte of this my Soune, I'm fure tis good.

Dru. Here is the like my greeious Lord befide.

Tiber. Is

Tiber. It may be like, but not so altogether.

Drus. Tis of the same.

Tiber. Well, please my humor Sonne.

Druf. Why good my Lord.

Tiber. By loue ile haue it to. He drinketh and falls downe, Scianus stabbeth Spado.

Enter a Meffenger.

Mess. Where is the Emperour? Augusta is deade.
Tib. Goe tell that newes to Proserpine. Seabs him.
Another Messenger.

Mes. Where's Casar? great Germanicus is dead.

Tiber. Commend me to Germanicus.

Stabs him.

Another Messenger.

Mef. Where's Nero, Piso is by the Plebeians saine Tibe. Let Rauens and Vultures gorge on his flesh and thine. Stabs him.

Another.

Meff. Where is Tiberius? where is Calars grace. Afinius and Sabinus both are dead.

Ti. Go greet the both thus fro Tiberius. Stabs him. How now what newes bringst thou? speak villain speake.

Seranus commet h toward him, and he maketh at him. Seianus cryeth out, and Nero stareth on him.

Seia. No newes my Lord, I am Seianus I,
I sau'd your life my Lord, I am Sejanus.
Tib. Pardon Sejanus onely faithfull friend,
The headlong surie of a troubled soule,
I dare not trult my selfe to see my Sonne.
O who would weare a Crowne to be tormented?
Sejanus I must ride in poste to Rome,
Toreigne the surie of the common heard,
See these soule carkasses be buryed.
Goe to Sejanus, when I have my will, He speaketh
Ile make thee Patterne of thy Villaines. this asse.
Meane

Meane while I will to Rome to finde the bookes, Augustus wrote and lett with Iulia. Exit Tiberius, Sesa. Why this is well, Germanicus is gone With Iulia and with Drusus into hell. Follow Sejanus, Noe: thy wits I meane, Alas poore Drusus, troth I pittie thee, And Spado too, me thinkes now I could weepe, But that it is too womanly: this chopping boy Whome I corrupted for this Stratageme, I did him a great fauour, had he lived Tiberius would have had him tortured. Hang'd by the Nauell for confession. Drufus, for thee, I could have witht thy life, But reason did in force thy deftinie. First that thou wert heire to Tiberius: Next an observer of my secrecies, Thirdly thy Livia, that Queene of beautic, The eldest Daughter to-Germanicus, Sejanus fecret friend, thy fecret foe, Next to Germanicus, heyre to the Crowne, Thy sometime, now my wife, if heavens agree, Tomakeme heire vnto a Princes Throne, Nay more, an Empyre thus shall be mine owner Fourthly the blow which I received in peace, Vntill revengemight fatisfie my will: All thefe, or any were sufficient : I am forry, I have vs'd thee too too well, Now to the fumme, of all my foes are left: Tiberius Cæfar, with him Agripma, Nero and Drusus the Germanici. Then thus the fierce enrag'd Germanici, I will infence against Tiberius. As the fole agent in their fathers death, Shew them the fauours of the Senators, The Plebeians harts inchained to their beckes, Faire baites for to allure their young conceites. Rebellion

Rebellion Ile intitle honourable,
And if that we obtaine the victorie
As I have bound them Legions to mine hoalt,
Then will I have my spies, my fawning Curs,
My hireling hell-hounds in the battailes heate,
To murther both the yong Germanici.
Tiberius vanquisht, and the semade away,
Cæsar Seianus, Empresse Livia.
Exit Seianus.

Calig. Now pleasured by fit occasion,
Poure forth the treasures of thy inward thoughts,
Which too too long have beene imprisoned,
Now muse on Romes ensuing miseries,
Tiberius treasons, and thy fathers death,
Thy brothers danger, and thine owne contempt,
And musing, meditate vpon revenge,
Banish harts quiet from thy sleeping thoughts,
Vntill thy thoughts be satisfied with blood.
Nero I come, inspireme instess are caligula. Exit Calign.

Enter Seianur, with Nero, and Drusus Germanici.
Seian. Nero, Drusus, Drusus, Nero, both are one;
Or one or both, for both I know are one:
And what I speake to one I speake to both.
Nay, heare me out for what I speake is true,
Piso did poyson great Germanicus
Your father, Neroes sonne and my good Lord,
I, by Tiberius pollicie.
Lo here the pardon made for Piso drawne,
Which Iulia dying did to me commend,
What shall I speake to move you to revenge,
The Senat is devoted to your slocke,
The common people in softmurmuring,
Like Bees doe seeke the honic of your Hives,
What if some Waspes doe move Tiberius?

Ihaue

I hauea swarme maugre these lazie droanes: I have the Legions at Scianus becke. And for my lake, and specially for yours, I know they will evibrate all their force, Besides the honour of your Countries good. Exile the tyrant, so did Cassius. Brutus the elder and the yonger Brute. Honour and fauour, youth and legions, The Senators, and the Plebians: If all may moue you, courage noble hearts; Let Hares and Harts befearfull in their kinds. Romanes have valiant and vndaunted minds. Nero. Brother a word with you: - Takes him aside Seia. I, go, consult, whilft I centuriate A thousand nets to catch such tender fooles. Nero. Drusus how dost thou like Seianus gesture? Dru. Faith like his words, for both are counterfet. Nero. V pon my life Tiberius sent the slaue. Dru. Tis fo by Ioue, tis fo, looke brother, fee How the damn'd villain fleares, & laughs, & lowres Wele first begin with him, & the for Nero: They be-Nero. Brother content, and now be resolute, ginto But here comes Iulius Celsus, hold thy hand. draw. Enter Iulius Celsus.

Celsus. Flie, flie Seianus, Iulius bids thee flie:
Nero hath found thy death in Iuliaes house,
Imeane, the cause of death, thy trecheries,
The letter that thou sent sto Liuia:
Away, shift for thy selfe, and so will I. Exit.
Seia. Hath he found that? Seianus curssethy selfe,
The lower world, and the highest heaven.
That he hath found thems die, consume, and burne.
I heare the noise of horses, they are here,
A plague vpon them all, then here away.

Exit
Ne. Brother away, tis time, we may suspect. Exennt
Seianus lookes in at the doore, and speaketh.

Seia. Hell

Sei. Hell yawne and swallow them: that way Iam This way the dogs wil bark & so betray me: (stopt, The geesewill gaggle, if I slie this way.

There are his murderous guard, a hel confound the: Oh for the seauen-way house of Hannibal!

Sejanus kill thy selfe, oh no I dare not, Would I were an Asse to beare: so Iam.

Iam not: I slie, I dare not: I cannot, I must. Exit.

Enter Tiberius with his guard pursuing Scianus.
Tib. Hast for your lives, sceke, scarch, enquire, stop Missoubt, examine, spie, watch, have a care, stay, And if he passe, not one of you shall scape Th' extreamest torments that I can instict.
Poast poast, away some to the Capitoll, Some to port Esquiline, mount Pallatine, Watch, watch the streetes, the Drusian streetes, Hie to the Altars, the Ægerian wood:
The bridge of Tiber, and Prometheus Lake, Some where, any where, every where, away, away.

Enter Seianus! the quard befets all the doores, he draweth and proffereth to come diners wages: at last rusheth on the guard, fighteth, and is taken. Seia. Heauen, earth, hell: helpe, hide, gape: here swallow vp a liuing facrifice, Grac'd with an Heccatombe of flaughtered flaues, Hold sword Sejanus barters death for death. Ti. So, bind the traitor fast in Iron chaines. Now flaue of honor, ground of Infamie, Obloquies subject, and faire dealings shame, Nay heare me villaine, for thou must, and shalt. Seia. Must, shal, and will, for I am bound to doe it. Tib. I, and to beare what euer I inflict. Sei, Strik quickly, & strike home, I wait the stroke And thall embrace the instrument of death, And

And never grieue to droune it in my blood So that the streamie spirits that ascend, Were of sufficient force to strangle thee: Tib. Ah good Sejanus how yet I pittie thee ! Seia. I craue no pittie, neither feare thy pride, Whose pittie onely serueth for a truce, To leuienew supply of tyrannie. Tibi The man begins to play the Orator, Get him a Throne to grace his eloquence. Seia. This kind of curtefie I will accept. Tib. Yet shall you not perform't except I will: Sci. If, Tygers issue thou shouldst cut out my tungs And rob my thoughts of their Ambassador, The boundlesse Ocean of my swelling thoughts, (Enraged with the malice of my heart) Would overflow my breafts immuring bankes, Tomake relation of thy villanie. Tib. Oh terrible revenge, intollerable. But Ishall vndergoe it as Imay, And here and there still as you glaunce at me, But touch a little your owne villainies, And therein play the true Historian. Tut courage man, why dost thou not begin? Seia. Bidst thou begin, who long will wish me end, Ere I have ript vp halfe thy villanies: Which neuer will have end vntill thou end. Oh hadst thou ended ere thou hadst begun. So many euils had not chaunc'd in Rome: Then had not Vestaes Tapers beene defil'd, North' Altars turnd to irreligious vses: When thou didl't make her neuer dying lampes, Serue for the Torches to thy burning lust, The whilest her Templemade a brothel-house, And all her virgins prostitute to thee. But these are but thy meanest outrages, Wrought in thy villainous minoritie

Lz

Thy

Thy Cleopatrean cates could scarce difgest, Without a measure daunc'd by naked truls. To feed thy glutton-eyes immodest gaze. Tib. And where was then Sejanus, holy man? Seia. Herein I doe accuse my selfe of guilt. . Tib . Beshrew thy hatefull head for doing it. Seia. Bale to thy hatefull heart for caufing it. Tib. Thy plotting head for so inventing it. Seia. Thy bloodie mind for fo concluding it. Tib. Andon Sejanus for effecting it. Sein. And on Sejanus for effecting it. Yet villaine doe I curfe my curfed selfe? Downe poyfed by the execrations Of those that thou by me hast murthered? Tib. Beleeue him firs, may be he speaketh truth. Seia. It may be tyrant, nay it is too true. Caius, and Lucius, were murthered, And Agripina, by Tiberius. So poyfoned Germanicus was flaine. Sabinus, and Asinius weredispatch'd, And Iulia for her sonne Tiberius. And so thou louedst Drusus thine owne sonnes To fucke his bloud in whose death still I joy, To thinke that therein I ore-reach'd a tyrant. Poore Prince vniustly doom'd to suddaine death; Which in his life he onely this deferu'd By giving mea whirret on the eare: But as for treasons ignominious spot against thy selfe, thy life or Diademe, His innocent thoughts never were tainted with. Ti. Hold hart, break not betwixt my rage & griefe Seia. Onely forthis. Tib. Onely for this ! O furie teach my tougue, To breath eternall curses on his soule. Seia. O how I triumph in foule-pleafing joy. That herein yet I die not vnreueng'd. Imade

Imade him die for mine owne proper fault, For know Tiberius as in all the rest. So in thy Sonne Drusus fad Tragedie, I grounded the foundation of my hopes, Meaning vpon the Ocean of their blouds, To swim voto the Throne of Maiestie, And from thy hand rend the imperial crowne. Tib. Here is the Catalogue of his deferts, Tis pittie but he were an Emperour. Sourius --- He mhispers in his eare 20 Exis Spuring Make haste, I charge thee on thy life. Herein I must detract from pollicie, And Fortune attribute the cause to thee. That thus I may revenge this treacherie. Seia. Revenge lalas thou mailt perhaps on me, Inflict th' extreamitie of punishment, And rid thee so of one peece of thy feare, But yet thou canst not scape deserved death, For from the Phænix ashes of their Sire, The heart reviued young Germanici. Wise Nero, and fierce Drusus arm'd with rage, Comelike alightning to confume thy state. Tiber. Soldiers pursue them ere they passe the To ioyne themselues vnto the Legions. Seia. Why lunaticke Vsurper of the Crowne, They are the lawfull heires vnto the state, Thou but adopted by false treacherie, My right as good as thine is to the Crowne, For both but falfe, and both but villanie. Tibe. Thou dooft me wrong Sejanus to vpbraid With Ignominious Title of ingrate. Or wrong detaining what is not mine owne. Enter Spursus with a burning Crownes Who, I Vhurpe your Crowne and your estate? I were not fit to live and if I should. Therefore my Majsters, heere before you all,

I doe refignemy crowne imperiall
Vnto Sejanus, and doe inuelt him Cæsar,

He lets the burning Crowne upon his head.
All haile Sejanus, Romes great Emperour.
Seia. Al haile: Hell, Death, Destruction plague
Let all the tortures, torments, punishments. (you al
In earth, in heaven, in hell, revenge my death,
Whose burning paine torments me not so much
as that there comes not from my scalded braines,
Sufficient smoake to smother all of you. He dyes.
Tibe. So dye thy Cursses with thy cursed selfe,

Now one goe cast, his bodye into Tiber, The rest goe with me, tis high time to hast. Exeum.

Enter Agripina fola. (omnes Agr. Oh heauenst and if that any power be highert O earth t and if that any lower lye? Melt heauens into a showre of supple balme. Flower earth, all purpled with Nepenthaes leaues, Too foolish Agripina to complaine, Earth, Heauens, Nepenthaes balme, and alin vaine. This earthly hart, it is my pleasing earth.

She openeth the box with the heart of Germanicus
This is Nepenthaes that doth cure annoy:
This balme, this Cassia, this is sweetest Myrrhe
When I forget to ioy in this respect,
Heaue, Earth, Nepenthaes all dome neglect
O what a dungeon is this tabernacle!
To whome, and when, and where shall I complaine!
I know not, and againe I knowe,
For Agripina is amaz'd with woe.

Enter Marco.

Macr. Madam, Tiberius Cæfars ma iestie,
Sent me to tell you of his neare approach.

Agri. Wil Nero come? where are his torturs then?
His rod, his Hatchets Rackes, gyues, manacles,
Whips, Gridiros, Tumbrels, Lyons, Tygers, beares.
And all his vnquoth new found Messengers,
Which

Aer. And what? good Gentleman, tel out the rest: What, will you fet a ship vpon my Sea, Fraught with a thousand Tunne of heavie cares. And with a sharpe tempestious Romaine winde, Saile vnto Thule or the frozen maine, Then glide uppon the yee and so to land, And sowe these seedes of care twixt bankes of Rue. Deepe delu'd, and deepe rooted in colde clay, Then in pursuing of this faintie soyle, Stay vntill haruest, and in Autumne sheare This fruitefull Corne, and so return e againe. But Agripina, these fond humors leaue, Macro, my griefe my sences halfe bereauc. Macr. True Agripina, Macro much did wonder, The variable passions of sad sorrow, That I lament the tragicke historie, This dolefull faultering Engine should impart, Nero will hether come vnder pretext, To comfort, but to trie your patience. He hath an Apple in such sirrop dipt, Which he in kindenes meanes to offer you: If you accept, accept a present death: If you denie, heele take exceptions, Against your faith, and subjects loyaltie. Dreadfull Dilemma counsell as you may. I doubt that Nero wil misdoubt my stay. Exit Macr. Agri. Dareshe not stay? O monstrous periurie! Did he not vow by Ioues eternall Crowne? By Saturnes fighe, and Venus golden belt? Mercuries

Mercuries changing rod and Lunaes Horne,
That he would stay with me. O periury!
Nero make hast: yet stay, ite paire my Nailes,
Least that I set my tallents on his face,
And spoile Narcissus comely personage.
He will give me an Aple, ite give him
A what? a Lemmon: no but ite give him
A Chesnut, and heele cracke the riven shell,
And twixt his Milstones, grinde the yealding meat
Germanicus, oh my Drusus! oh my Deare,
Nero, no! Nero Casar will visite me;
And seede me sat with Capons and with Quailes.
Quailes! noe with Apples so he comes:
I shall be cram'd to day.

Enter Teberius with his attendants Spurius & Nerna,

Macro and Caligula following after.

Tiber. Faire Daughter Agripina, you doe wrong That spotsesse beautie with congealed teares. Blotting those Rubies with dissolved pearles, Stayning those Roses with such Christal streames. Is not the world subject to Romaine power? And thou the Daughter of the Emperour, And so th'imperial Mistresse of the world? Then Agripina but commaund the world? and all the world shall seeke to comfort thee.

Agri. Nero, not all the world can comfort me, Since all the world hath lost my comforter.

Tiber. Hath all the world? what did your Lord afDaughter, you cannot rule vnlesse you raigne. (pire?

Agr. Blush not deare Ensigne of my modestie,
Shame light on me if that I beasham'd,
Since thou wilt never beasham'd of shame,
My Lord Germanicus did he aspire?
No Nero no, there lurkes the sistila
Offawning hatred that did murther him.
Did he not honour Rome in Germany?

Did

Did he not homage to Tiberius?
Did he not loue his countrie past compare?
Courteous and milde, and too obsequious?
Too well beloued and too credulous?
and therefore murthered.

And breath, and raile, and raile and breath againe, and then I hope your Ladyship will stay, Meane while, hold, heeres an apple to refresh The dryed vapours of your fuming head. Eate it and breath, eate it and raile againe, Doe so faire Daughter to allay your paine. Words ease the stomacke.

Agrip. So must they mine:
Or else my heart would breake in vile dispite.
Monster of Monsters, ill is too too good,
Cruel, too mildea title for thy deedes:
Nature could neuer finde a man so bad,
That might resemble thy soule Villanies.
Toade, Crockadile, Aspe, Viper, Busiliske,
Too holsome, tame, milde, gentle, vertuous,
For Neroes poy son, surie, enuy, wrath.

Tibe. Woman, listen much vnto thy Taunts, Yet know that I have Pandaturia, There, babble to the wind, thy foolish moanes, There in some defart make thy Elegies, Tune them vnto the puling harmony, Of the lamenting confort bred in Thrace: Rome shall not heare thy yelling execrations, Before Enos shall source times be washt, In Nercus sountaine with Hiperion, Vpon thy life see that thou see not Rome, But banisht, backeto pandaturia.

Agri. First let the head of Nilus bereueal'd, Let Tiber flowe in Ægipt, Nile in Rome, Let earth to ayre, and water turne to fire,

All

All to confusion, let heaven turne to hell, And which is more and most Prodigious, Let Nero thinke one thought of honestie, If Agripina yeeld to bannishment. Did not Sejanus blazen all thy wrongs, That all the world doth loath thy treacheries? Did not the Parthian King admonish thee? Thou wert a villaine, and thou fworst twas true, Doth not each night with dreames of thy foule fins Torment thy foule with gastly Spectacles? Cajus, Lucius, Augustus, Inlia, Sejanus, and my Lord Germanicus, Solicite Pluto for thy deepereuenge? They doe, they doe, and all the furies shake There new filde yron whips for their reuenge. If there be heauen, be sure of Nemesis: If there be hell be fure to be tormented, With balefull tortors never yet invented. (breath? Tibe. Notall this while, good Daughter out of Wel, speake thy last, that Rome shal here thee prate Agr. My last fond Tyrant know that I wil speake In spite of Neros in distaine of Rome, Nero the Butcher, bloody shambles Rome, Who fells the fayrelt ware at meanest price. Tibe. Land because peeuish wilfull griefe, Hathmade you somewhat leane, not fit for sale, You shall to grasse to Pandaturia: Prouide her hay and water store enough. Agrip. No. no, what fiall I call this hate of earth? Ile call him Nero, thats the worst of all. Nero, it shall not neede, I am provided Offairer Cates without thy honest care, The corne that makes my bread are yellow cares, Ripened by heate of anger, in my breast, The barren field of nought but carefull seedes. My meate the fodden forrowes of my heart, Which

Which boile with soft remembrance of my woes, And if I play the Epicure in griefe, My teares shall be the sence of my repasts. If cuer other soode my tongue dee taste: I euer other soode my stomacke doe concockt: Let all be turn'd from sustentation, To fill impostumes with contagious silth. I tell thee Nero, Agripine will die, And starueherselfe, and scorne thy bannishment. Tis two daies since I last did taste of meate, Curst be my soule, if euer I doe eate.

Tibe. Will you not? see, sirra, go fetch some soode I le make thee curste thy selfe: hold, take, fall too.

Agri. Detested tyrant, I do scorne thy soode.

Ile make thee cursse thy selfe: hold, take, fall too.

Agri. Detested tyrant, I do scorne thy soode.

Tib. Then helpe Sirra, ope her mouth & seede her,
Cut her meate small, and seede her daintily.

Agr. Out villaine. He feedeth her, and she puttethis
Tibe, Sirra dispatch I say.

Nay, cram her then, & seede her sat withall.

What hast thou strangled her? here take thy hyre.

Canst thou not feed a Daw no better yet? Stabs him.

Nern. Ah, Nero, Nero.

Tib. What Nerua be content,
She chose of this rather then banishment:
And better choake then starue our wilful daughter,
Shee's gone, and if I live thou shalt goe after. Aside.

Exent all but Macro and Caligula.

Macro. Barbarous, inhumane, worse then crueltie,
Which Gods and men, mine eyes, and soule, do hate,
What Hyporborian Climate in the North?
What Lidian desart, Indian vastacie?
What wildernesse in wilde Arabia,
So hatefull monster euer nourished,
To hinder willing death by villanie?
Caligula, Changeling Caligula,

Where

Where is the Spirit of Germanicus? Did he beget thee in an idle dreame? Or did thy Mother thinke it vanitie As Æthiops Queene vpon Andromeda? If but one sparke by chance remaine alive, If but one drop, one Mathematicke point, Make vpa Sea, a bodie by addition, Blow vp (Caligula) this fleepie sparke, Caligula remember what thou art. Calig. Macro, Caligula can beare thy taunts. Can be vpbraided at a Captaines hand, My Father told me, and I remember it, The highest vertue is true patience. I know not what you meane by all these wordes. That mount my Fathers prayles to the skie, To live securely, I deeme that the best, And a great vertue to be patient. Macro. Patient Caligula, Iama sham'd, I am impatient to heare that word, That noble Title wrested from his sence, Ah I did not Macro serue Germanicus When as thy Mother bare thee in the field? Didnot a peale of Trumpets found thy birth? And Drumsmake musicke to allay hir paines? Wast thou not train'd fore thou couldst speake, Didst thou not were a Common Soldiers sute? And therefore hadst thy name Caligula? Where is thy Captine soule imprisoned? Thy Lyons heart? incag'd! no, thouart wise, Thou deem'it that Nero hath suborn'd my tongue, To make a glozing Theame of flatterie, To lift thy secrets, and to sell thy life, First let the earth open her curssed womber and swallow vp this hellish mantion. Let eueriestep treade on a Scorpion: Let euerie object be a Bassaliske:

Let.

Let heauen—what can I wish Caligula? Hereis my poynard:here, be fure strike home, If thou canst have but least suspition That Macro feekes to vndermine my Lord. What? shall I now become a Sycophant? Cali. Macro, Caligula doth not mistrust, Nor hath he reason to misdoubt thy faith, But Macro, thus much for Caligula: Meete me at Fides Temple, there thou shalt know More, then vnto my mother I durst shew. Macro. Were it to Thale, I would thether, poast, To heare the sentence of Caligula, Till then my Lord adiew. Exit Macro. Calig. Farwel Macro. My Father flaine or poyfoned in the East, Liuia become a foule adulteresse. Nero and Drusus fast shut vp in ward, and thou deere mother heere lyest butchered. Grow to the earth you feeble instruments. He kneels downe Till I distill a liquid sacrifice From my harts fornance, & these Christal streames. Ye dry'd vp wels straine out a little more, Tis Agripina that you must deplore. Proud Spirit, bound thy fwelling Timpanie,

Till I distill a liquid facrifice downe
From my harts fornance, & these Christal streames.
Ye dry'd vp wels straine out a little more,
Tis Agripina that you must deplore.
Proud Spirit, bound thy swelling Timpanie,
Till I vnstraught this Galley of laments.
Then cleare thy passage, and burst out in fire,
and make an Earthquake in this little world.
What shall I vow? to whome shall I lament?
Vnto the Marbles? they doe weepe for sorrow.
Vnto the Walles? thy riue themselues with griese.
Vnto the Beass? why they would starue themselues
To seede themselues vponthis fading hew.
Marbles and Walles, and beastes more ruth then he,
That was the Author of this Tragedie.

He takes her in his armes and goes in.

Eneas burthen neuer was so deare, M 3

As

Exit. As this celestiall burthen which I beare. Nero and Drusus chained in prison. Dru. Brother I faint, and now my starued soule, Seekes for to feed vpon Ambrolia. (chain'd Nero, Dear Drusius, wold mine armes were but vn-That thou mightst stanch thy hunger on my Hesh: My colder humors feed my gnawing heat, That I can better yet endure the fast. See brother I thinke thou maist reach mine arme. I pray thee feed vpon this leane repast. Dru. No brother if it would prolong my life, Till the great yeare when al things must be chang'd To the Idea of the formers will. But if thy hungry woolfedoe vexethy foule, Feed on these cates, taste on this brawnie arme, That will reioyce to feede thy appetite. Nero. Nay brother feed on mine ? They eate each Dru. Nay brother mine.) others armes. Enter Caligula againe. Cal. Boast not Antigone of thy deare loue. To Polinices thy affected brother, Whom thou in fight of Creon didst entombe, I haue entomb'd a farremore precious Iewell, I in dispite of Nero farre more cruell. Dru. Ah, Nero, Nero, that dost vs enforce. To be fuch louing Romane Canibals, Cal. Who calles on Nero, wast my mothers ghost? Nero. Ah cruell Casar, brother forgiue, forgiue, My food digesteth not, nor can I liue.

Cal. Or am I blind, or doe mine eyes behold,
My starued brothers tis so Caligula.

Nero. Brother farewell my glasse of life is run.

Dru. And Ile go with thee to Elizium. They both dio
Cal. Is there a provident intelligence?

That rules the world by his eternall being?

Is there a Loue 2 and will he not be just?

Or is he iust? and will he not revenge?
What is he? whom, or where, or who can tell?
Canst thou not move the heavens? then raise vp hell.

Exit Caligula.

Enter Tiberius with hie guard.

Tib. Cocceius Nerua staru'd himselfe to death, I wondermuch what made the old man die, In truth I lou'd him for his naked truth, In truth he was an honest simple man.

Well vertue go with him, vice stay with me, Till I haue massacred my prisoners, And rooted out all this conspiracie:
Then will I seeme a new reformed man, And rise betimes each morning to the Temple, So afterwards I may contriue some drifts. I haue a Catalogue which I must finde, And search the prisons whether I haue all.

Inline Celfus crieth out of prison.

Cel. Ah, Nero, Nero, Celfus begs thine ayde,

Tib. Iulius Celfus what is thy petition?

Cel. An humblefutor for your clemencie.

Tib. My clemencie Celfus, Marie and you shall,

I, and great reason for Scianus sake.

But by thy vertues I doe thee intreat, ah gracious Nero let my Guiues be loos'd.

Tib. And Celfus led to execution.

Cel. Ah, no Tiberius, I desire not death,
But better esse in my imprisonment,
For this I beg.

Tib. For whose fake Iulius?

Celf. For mercies sake, and thy deare Geneus.
Tib. For that word Iailer loose his Iron bands,
Or by my Geneus thou shalt loose thy head,
Celf. O voice of comfort, thanks Tiberius.
Tib. Tis but for a while, know that Iulius.

Celf. Now

Cellus. Now monster, Tyger, earthes infection.
Plague of the world, scourge of our happie Rome,
Treasons first borne, hels out-spewed vommit,
Prodigious homicide, and must hers lawe,
That makes a sporting lawe to murther men.

Tibe. Holla and breathe, and then beginne again,
Nero shall recompence thee for thy paine.

Celsus Such Recompence had good Germanicus,
Such Agripina, such had Iulia:
Such Nero, Drusus, and their dearest Mother,
Poore Agripina, wise Asinius:
Sabinus, Nerua, and thy other selfe,
Young Drusus, whose deare blood was once thine
Yet of thine owne hadst no compassion.

And lastly, (though not vudeseruing it)
Yet heerein well deseruing at thy hands,
In that he was thy mischieses instrument:
Haplesse Sejanus too improvident,
Of his intended fall, thy false intent.
And such a recompence remaines for me,

Tibe. Marieamen, sweare it, an Oracle:
Cessus. But tyrant, Celsus doth contemne thy furie
My minde was never fever-shooke with seare
Of Meagre death, lifes due privation,
I have alreadie arm'd my age to die,
Whose age deemes death the end of miserie.
See therefore Tyger, heeres thy mercies fruite,
The ease I sought, the end of earnest suite,
For this I beg'd, for this I feem'd vnwilling,
For to be dead, that I might gaine my killing.
He puts the Chaine about his necke and strangles himself.

The meanest subjest of thy Tyrannie.

Tiber. Wondrous well gain'd, here is good vsury, Where tis the gainers interest to die: ButOh for Charitie! Iayler, Soldiers run, Rescue his life, before his life be gone.

Yet

Yet let him goe.

Isiler What is your highnesse will?

Tib. Nay nothing now but that as you man dies,
For Charitie close vp his dying eyes.

Why this it is to have a pollicie,
Here's a poore plot to prevent crueltie.
And ten to one the villaine understands,
How this will vexe me that he scapes my hands.

But let that passe leave him to Acheron,
His part is past, part of my part's to come.

Excunt omnes.

Enter Caligula and Macro from Fides Temple.
Cal. Thus have we interchang dour mutual othes
In presence of the Goddesse of all truth:
Macro remember how thou artinioyn'd,
By words, by signes, by letters and by thoughts,
For to adore eternal secrecie.

Macro. And if my Lord missoubt my secrecie, Cut out my tongue, cut off my traitors hands, Vnioynt my bodie, and pull out my heart, That I may neither tell, nor make a signe, Nor thinke one thought against your royaltie.

That having all this while securely slept,
Vnder the Canopie of vanitie,
And neuer did impart my secrecie,
To father, mother, or my brethren:
Nerua, Sabinus, or Asinus:
Nero, Seianus, all I have deceived;
Vnder pretext of youthfull braverie.
But Macro, to thy youth I recommend,
The supreame relique of Germanicus.
by Agripinaes loathed execution,
By my deare brothers starved carkasses,
By thee, by me, by all the gods, by all:
And if that any number be, more then all.

Ioyne

Ioyne to exile this proud Tarquinlus, Infulting Nero: no not fo, not fo: Yes foit must be, or else murthered, For nought but death can fatisfic my wrongs. Maero. Like as a Grayhound in his hot pursuite. Striues to out Strip the fearfull flying Doc, Or as Dianaes gift to Cephalus, yearn'd to out-run the beast of Archadie. Both striuing, yet both swifter then the blasts. Disdaine Boreas in his swelling pride. Shot for the lister of faire Dianire: So doth the honour of your houering thoughts, Grudge to be equall'd by my fluttering flight, Yet good my Lord give Macro leave to mount. And ceaze vpon the accosting stooping pray. Cal. Not so, I (Macro) tis that have the wrong. Macro. But Imy Lord, -Cal. Do not intreat, Doe not prolong with idle breathing words. The date of cold revenge: for even this night, Nero shall be inroll'd in Plutoes Court. In Germanie farre on the Northren lide, Within the circuit of a defart wood, A wildernesse of deadly Basilisks, Within this circuit is an hellish poole, Cold in the tenth degree. Not Stix fo cold, Wherein the fearefull Thetis drencht her sonne. In a Mules hoofe this water have I kept, As fatall drinke to Philips worthie fonne, And even this night this water shall revenge, The Tyrants wrongs vnto Caligula, Macroflie vnto the Legions, win their hearts, Perswade with all thy warlike eloquence, Aduaunce our Eagles, and to morrow morne Approach with them vnto the Capitol, Faile not good Macro, but make half away,

This night for Nero or Caligula.

Enter Linia Sola.

Linia. Can Liuia still participate this ayre?

Still temporize with fawning miserie?

Still feed on cares, yet still vaine hopes repaire?

Will nothing end my cruell destinie?

What lumpish Saturne did inspire my breath,

Did make me die in life, yet liue in death?

Breath out thy plaints, with all breath out thy hart Euaporate the spirits of thy soule,
Weepe out thy braine the substance of thy smart,
That knew thy shame, yet would not sin controule,
Anotamize this Sepulchre of shame,
Soule, hart, and braine, and all, and all to blame.

Is Drusus dead? and yet can Liuialiue?
Sejanus at Elizium, and I stay?
My father murthered? who melife can giue?
My brothers staru'd? Liuianot made away?
Old Heccuba by death could ease her griefe,
And cannot Liuia find out like reliefe?

Can I that flourished like fairest Rose,
Droope like the Lillie beaten downe with raine?
Can I to whom each courtiers tongue would glose,
Endure their scornes, their taunts and vile disdaine?
Could Liuia liue, when Liuia was contented?
And cannot Liuia die now shees tormented?

She kneeles downe by the Welles side.

Great Faunus to whose sacred Deitie,
This sanctified groue is consecrate:
Accept the incense of my last pietie,
N 2

The

The best devotion I can dedicate:
Accept great Faunus this my dying proffer:
Many more great, none more sincere can offer.

Not Dido to Sicheus sacrifice,
Nor Cleopatra vnto Anthonie:
Nor great Olympias could this truce dispise,
Nor Sophonisbaes loyall miserie:
Zenabia, Palmicaes noble Queene,
This satall end of Liuia might be seeme.

Faire fountaine cleare the blots of infamie,
Coldstreames, congeale the rumour of my death,
Thou onely Philomelasing my Tragedie,
Carrolla Dirge for my exhaled breath:
Fairestreames I come, let no man heare my cries,
Let no man shed one teare that Livia dies.

Here she leapeth in.

Enter Caligula folus.

Cal. By this, the cruel Tarquine should be sped;
Banisht from Rome and Romane Emperie,
But much I seare, preservatives doe stay
The furie of his waterie receipt,
And Macro may be trecherous: what a soole
Was I for to impart my secrecie?
O what a villaine was Caligula?
Horror consounds me in this Agonie:
But Ile Catastrophize this Tragedie.
Did not the villaine sweare, and vow, and weepe,
Offer his breast, that I might make a window
To see the cankers of his sestred soule,
And thou wouldest not take him at his word?

Enter Macro.

Macro. My Lord, the legions are all vp in armes, For to falute your grace the Emperour.

Cal. Thanks

Cali. Thankes Macro, royall friend commaund them stay,

Till I returne from Nero back againe. Exit Macre. Caligula goesh to the place where Noro Tiberius lyeth sicke, and pulleth aside the Arras.

Caligula. All happinesse vnto your Majestie. Tibe. Curst be all happinesse, sor I haue none. I haue a fire, a fire within my bowells, That burnes, and scalds, and mads me with the pain: If I must die, yet would I had my wish. Oh that even all the people in the world, Had but one necke that at one deadly blowe, I might vnpeople all the world and die. Giueme my hangs that I may rent my flesh, And teare this raging from out my burning intralls Where is Æsculapius? who goes for him? He hale the leach from hell to cure my paine, And if that Nero doe not quickly mend, He burne even all the Temples of the Gods, That cannot help the Romaine Emperour. Calig. Yes, I will helpe the Remaine Emperous, and be reveng'd on thee Tiberius.

Thou monster Tyrant, thus ile help thee thus:

Heeft ops has breath with the sheete, and stabs him. This for Germanicus, this for Agripine, This for Nero, this for Drufus, this for Caligula, So, - Reenters upon the Stage. There Nero, the hate of Romelies butchered, He raign'd noe day, lut some were murchered, Asking his Maister Zenoa Greeke word, What Dialect ? he answered Dorice, And therefore kitd him, for because he thoughs He mockt him for his Rhodian banniss, went.

He loathd wine now becaute he swilled goare: Moreg eedily then he did ware't ctore.

Hesluc a Poet for this little cause,

Because

Because that in a dolefull Tragedie. Hee rail'd on Agamemnons crueltie. It is a holy law, and Romaine rite, No vestall Virgin should be strangled. He for to invent a crueltie, Made first the hang-man to deslow re the Maides. And then commanded for to strangle them. When one had almost kild himselfe for feare. Hemadehis Surgions for to cure his woundes. The tyrant would deny no Witnesles, If any didaccuse twas present death. When first the Tyrant did possesse the Crowne He sent to Rhodes, for a deare friend of his, Who cherrisht Nero in his banishment. He comming vnto Rome, found out the Princes But in an angrie, sullen, discontent: Who in a rage made him be tortured: And whe the villain saw he had wrong dhis friend He murthered him, that it might be conceald. He crucified one Peter cald a Saint, Ofholy Iewes, that did adore one Christ, Which they entitle Saujour of the world. He kil'done Pryam (therein happy most, In that he lived and all his Cuildren lost.) These and so many more as should I tell, Ishould imploy a world to number them, And still be further with Simonides, To signifie the certaine multitude. By these his acts ile iustifie his death, That I may get Romes royall Empiry, And to eternall glorie of renowne, I was afoole, but all to get the Crowne.

FINIS.

C45 1607a

PR Claudius Tiberius Nero (Play)
2411 Claudius Tiberius Nero

PLEASE DO NOT REMOVE CARDS OR SLIPS FROM THIS POCKET

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO LIBRARY

